MISSION- To educate and enrich...ok., the latter is open to debate. Even teachers and administrators can't entirely agree on what a high school's role is in a student's life. And if you ask the students well, we've heard the cliches: a prison system, a place to socialize, a place to mature and expand our horizons (the latter is most likely to be found on the college application)...so let's examine the evidence; a yearin the life of a high school student.

The year starts off with a general anticipation and adjustment. The girls check out who's wearing what. The guys check out the girls. The freshmen worry about getting from the 200's to the 300's wing; the sophomores are sure theynever looked as small as the new class of freshmen do; the juniors wonder about the PSAT's; the seniors wonder who is applying where. The sport teams ready for their first games, themusic groups come together and the clubs advertise for members. The big fall social event is Homecoming: the bonfire, the floats, the game, the dance...By midwinter we've found our routines. We know which class we can afford to walk slowly to and which ones we can't. We tend to sit atthe same lunch tables and hang out with the same friends. The winter can be bleak, so we look for the unusual: unexpected snowdays, early college accept letters, theatre co.plays, unauthorized ski trips, major term papers...Spring brings the third and fourth quarters, which bring us out of hibernation and into mayhem. There are the A.P.'s, the SAT's, Powder Puff, Prom, finals...The noise level goes up with the cutting rate. Most of us race toward summer and the vacation it'll bring. Some of us are more sad to leave than others (for instance, seniors v. freshmen). In our minds, as in the long days of the second quarter, we mark the unusual and the fun we've had. And yet during the year, somehow they squeezed in pythagorean's theorem, parables, MacBeth, conjugating verbs...What does this all add up to? Education and enrichment? Well, this is the opening of the school's yearbook, and I know what it should say, but it's left up to you; because looking back at the year through these pages, we all have our own memories and ideas of what a high school should be.

EXHIBIT (A): ARMED AND READY to attack the lab equipment in chemistry class, Jim Beck, Chris Silver, Matt Gibb and Greg Frankel wait for Mr. Miller to give the okay.

TOP SECRET

TOP SECRET... reliable sources reveal senior agent 113 will dissolve relationship with agent 206 and team up with junior agent 42. CODE BROKEN... SECURITY LEAK...ALERT!!!!

Everyone has information they think is "Top Secret". This information is to be shared with just a few trusted agents. However, diligent secret agents are at work everywhere. They infiltrate lunch lines, bathrooms and buses. Soon the "secret" is out. Information which is gathered is often embellished, enhanced or given a new twist. Secrets uncovered at Harborfields often involve which agent is seeing which agent, what "safehouse" the agents will meet for their Saturday night meeting, etc.

The time has come to uncover these secret agents of Harborfields. They come in all different sizes, from small ninth graders to large seniors and everything in-between. They disguise themselves by sporting Mohawks, half shaved heads, rainbow hair. They may resemble Brian Bosworth, Brooke Shields, Boy George or Michael J. Fox. This vast organization of secret agents and their leaders, trainers and cohorts are now exposed...

Some of our chiefs maybe our mothers, fathers, friends or neighbors. They serve in the unit known as the School Board. Still others are based at District Headquarters, located at 2 Old field Road, and operate the unit called Central Administration. Those based in the field and given the direct task of training "agents" are know as Building Administrators and Faculty.

Regardless of the capacity in which they serve, the chiefs have offered us the best; opportunities, challenges, training and equipment. They have helped prepare us for life in the "field". We, the Graduating Class of 1987, extend to all the chiefs our thanks for giving us the tools to become the best that we can be.

"Where Do I GO?"

"Where do I go?" "Where are the math rooms?" "This place is so big!" These are a few of the many reactions expressed by freshman their first day of school. Many are confused by the seemingly random numbering of rooms and the general overall size. Although feeling lost at first, most freshmen learn to navigate the halls almost as well as upper classmen. One freshman was quoted as saying,"It's not really hard, it just takes some getting use to."

Despite the new layout and earlier time schedule most freshmen are glad they moved up to the high school. "Everything is much better here than at Oldfields; you see a new face everyday and you don't feel surrounded by immature people." The majority of freshmen admitted to being a little apprehensive at first. One freshman said "I was so happy to make it through the day without getting killed. I was really surprised by how nice the teachers, students and staff were! After about a week, most of the rumors heard in eighth grade were disproven and you were feeling comfortable".

Comparatively, most preferred Harborfields to Oldfields. "Harborfields offers a large variety of activities, sports and clubs, something for everyone." Most freshmen seem pleased both with their classes and teachers despite the work load having been increased. "The trick" one freshman advises "is keeping a good balance between school work and extra activities. That way, you can still have fun while maintaining a good grade average."

The freshmen are enjoying Harborfields but can't wait till next year when they will not be the little guys.

IT'S NOT ALL FUN

It's not bad being a Sophomores. We are accepted more by the upper classmen than we were as freshmen. Teachers seem to be a little nicer too, it may be that they like us or maybe we have just gotten used to them. After our "year of confusion", we know what our school has to offer and we are taking advantage of them like you wouldn't believe. We are getting involved in sports, theatre, music, and all sorts of clubs and organizations.

But school isn't the only thing that we are getting excited about. Many of us are getting great jobs, getting involved with other people, and about this time learning how to drive and getting our permits. So right now everything is just fine and we're having the time of our lives, sort of.

It's not all fun and games being a Sophomore. We do have our downs. For one thing the school work is hard and tedious and gets in the way of our out of school lives. There is a lot more of this homework and the teachers expect a LOT more than we did when we were freshman. But it really doesn't matter.

There are some problems with bein a Sophomore. But there are many more pluses than there are minuses. Well so far so good. One year down, three to go!

The Juniors Challenge

"This year is the toughest" "Or at least that's what everyone says" Everyone was saying the same thing. "Eleventh grade really determines what colleges you can apply to and become accepted to" "Do well now, it's important" All these words from my friends, parents and teachers frightened me. It's true, your junior year is full of new experiences, more challenging classes, studying for and taking the S.A.T.'s, driving cars and just plain thinking about your future.

I feel, the junior class of 1987 has done a beautiful job in more than one way. We have all united together, theamount of school spirit put forth by the juniors is exciting. For example, the successful talent show which raised money for our prom. This was one of the first years an all junior newsletter has been published on a regular basis. The newsletter is also a success. Lots of work by all was put into "the junior" powder puff and not to mention the homecoming float made by the juniors which won first prize in the homecoming parade.

Eleventh grade is truly everyone's year to shine. To do their best, get involved so your college applications will be filled!

Even though your junior year is filled with tough classes keeeping up your spirit with the rest of the class and staying out of cliques helps to get through it all and with memories in your mind. Most of all the memories you will have of high school will be the crazy things you and your classmates did together.

"The Experience of Driver Ed"

By the time someone is a sophomore they're pretty much tired of being driven around by their parents. By then, you usually have some older friends with access to a car anyway. But you are also wanting to drive yourself. You want to drive as soon as possible which legally will be seventen. If you take Drivers Ed, right away people will think, "Oh no, Driver Ed will be so boring". However, it's really not bad. I took a course at Huntington High School last summer with four friends. I can honestly say although we hated getting up at 7:30 and being in class for three hours, we had a lot of laughs. The course lasted for about a month and the first two weeks we had two classes, simulator and a lecture. The simulator got very boring. All we did was sit behind a steering wheel and stare at a screen with a moving car. We wanted that to be over. My friends and I laughed a lot, wrote notes or actually slept. Our instructor was really easy going. We mostly watched movies which were very disgusting. All about people getting into car accidents. We watched real accidents with all the mutilated bodies. Let me tell you, on the day our driving started, we were real psyched to go drive! We'd just finished watching a movie about how an inexperienced driver killed himself while speeding.

The driving was fun. I was in the car with one friend and my other three friends were together. They got to drive in a blue Cutlass Supreme while we drove in an ugly brown panelled Eagle! We did pretty well and it was fun to see how fast we could go. (Incidently, it was 65mph.) We had a few near accidents too. I think we gave our instructor about three heart attacks. My friend in the other car nearly drove into a tree while looking at Billy Joel's house. Her teacher was not pleased. If you are lucky you can get a cool instructor. Their instructor let them stop for soda and food and let them play whatever radio station they liked. Our's played CBS FM and offered us Herbal Tea. Then the final day, he let us all play a certain station. My friend played WPLJ, the rider played WBAB. And then my turn came and wouldn't you know. WLIR wouldn't come in. What can you expect from an Eagle?

My birthday is in March so I have to wait untill then to get my junior license, but I'm relieved I took Drivers Ed.

Beginings and Endings

Senior year is a time to reach for new things while letting go of old ones. It is a year filled with sadness and joy. It is sad because, for the first time, all the people in the class ahead of your year are gone; friendships and groups have changed. You realize that in less than ten months you too will have to leave. But, hey!. It is senior year, the year for which you have been waiting. Once the applications are out of the way and the weight of the world has been lifted off your shoulders, it's time to enjoy your last year. Senior year can be as scary as that day twelve years ago as you stood, waiting for the bus, your mom's hand holding yours and your bus letter fastened to your sweater. Things which have been so familiar for so long now must be left behind and new and unknown situations must be faced. It is with much excitement and may be a little apprehension that we approach that Sunday in June when we leave our childhood behind and commence our "adulthood".

A DIFFERENT POINT OF VIEW

Feeling very at home among the Harborfields crowd.

My name is Luis Barcenilla and I come from Spain. I'm 19 years old but I'm not really like my age, because I like to do crazy things that are not typical of my age. Well, I know that most of you are now asking yourself, what is a Spanish student doing here, and why? Well, really when I decided to come here I wasn't really sure if I wanted to spend a year out of my country but I thought that this is a great experience. Now that I'm here, I know I will do well by spending one year in this country. First of all to learn English and also important time is to learn to live with people who have different life styles.

In just a short while I think that the United States is totally different from Europe in almost all aspects. The schools are different in all respects: the classes, the teachers, the tests, absolutely everything. In Spain and in most European countries the schools are really hard and they haven't the social activities that the American schools have. For example you can't choose your subjects, they are given to you.

The life is absolutely different. In Spain we have different traditions one of them is to drink. In Spain the wines and beer are normal to drink which is a big difference from the United States because here to drink is illegal for young people. Sometimes is hard for me to drink all the time Coca Cola but I'm surviving.

Another difference in life is the family's in Spain you see all of your own family constantly because all of your family lives in the same town or city. I think here is a problem because when the students need to go to college they need houses away from home. In Spain, you always want to stay in your town with your friends and family.

Why ideas of this country and life style's are so different is because this country is a new country and the people who live in this country come from many different countries and for us this is the biggest difference, in Spain everybody comes from Spain and it is very unusual to find a person with a difference religion or that come from another country.

Well this is my point of view and I hope to spend all of this year in Harborfields with all of you and I hope you will like me because I love this school. Thanks to everybody in Harborfields for permitting me to spend one great year with you because for me this is a year to remember.

July 21, 1986 - I never thought the day would come when I had to leave. It was hard saying "goodbye" to everyone; but before I knew it, I was on a plane to Germany with 150 other exchange students. My host family, the Thomases, live in Hamburg. My host family is very nice. I was happy when I found out there would be someone of my age, Folke is seventeen. I was happy to be staying in the north because the dialect is much easier to understand. Hamburg is divided into many different sections so I actually live in Volsdorf. It is a lot like Greenlawn in that it is a small town where people commute to the city. There isn't too much happening after school here. However, I do play in "Big Band" (like our stage band) and orchestra. They are so much fun! The people are great and I always look foward to them. School is different in other ways also. We have only two tests per semester in each class. It sounds easy but those test cover a widespan of material so they are hard. It is hard to understand school sometimes. There are lots of words I still do not know but someone is always around to help me. My favorite subjects are English and Russian. I am not really homesick although I do think of the U.S.A. a lot. People here love to talk about America and it's funny to hear stereotypes. If we were all what the Germans thought, we'd be cowboys with hugh cars and live in New York, Texas, California or Florida. This is really a lifetime experience I know I will never forget. Everyone says I am missing my senior year, the best year. I say they are right, this is the best one, and I am loving it!

THE CLASS OF '87'S BEST AND MOST

The competition was close and selection tough, but here it is this years Best and Most of Harborfields High School. Twenty members of the senior class were singled out by their peers as the class of 1987's Best and Most. Voting this year was particularly representative. More than 4/5's of the class participated in the process. The most surprising thing was the large number of nominees. "It was so hard to decide. Our class has got so many people to choose from", said one senior. The most competitive and hotly contested categories were Best Looking, Best Dressed, Best Athlete and Most Likely to Succeed. Although opinions varied, at the end of the accounting, it was clear who had won. Unfortunately, not all the people possesses talent, abilities and outstanding traits will be recognized. To those who have, we extend our congratulations for your hard work and long time commitment. May you and the entire Class of 1987 go on to the Best and Most at whatever we undertake.

One major change that occured this year was the relocating of the patio. The Administration felt the location of the old patio was unsafe, disrupted classes and gave an "image" to the school. Some students were interviewed on their reaction to the new patio. Some, such as Matt McQueeney, argued that "it showed a better image of the school". Others, like Ellen Mooney, said "No one could really see us from the old patio anyway!" Still others felt the old patio was more convenent. "People who smoke could easily have a cigarette between classes," stated Jack Lazar; "and they don't get wet," commented Doug Smolcop and Chris Auld. Before the new patio was constructed, there were two patios to choose from. Sue Sullivan felt this made the areas less crowed while Rhea Flood and Amy Knapp felt having just one patio brought different people closer together. There were still others, such as Mike Guttman, who did not care where the patio was placed. It would appear that no matter where the patio was placed the administration would not have been able to make everyone happy. They are however, planning to improve upon the present site. Sometime next year, a roof will be added to keep everyone dry on rainy days. Athough it may take some getting use to, in a few years the new patio will feel like home, sweet, home.

It is pictures such as this one that remind us Harborfields is not such a bad place to be.

The Class of 1990 will always remember Scott McMahon and Joseph Meagher. Scott will be remembered for his quiet and friendly ways and Joe for his sense of humor. Joe enjoyed track, ice cream, playing computer and video games, and remote controlled cars. Scott was interested in tennis, arcade games, mathematics, and Dungeons and Dragons. We will miss you Scott and Joe.

COVERT ACTIVITIES

What did you think goes on among the students at Harborfields High School? Well it was a "top secret" situation, but now it is being made known to all. Would you believe that the Sophmore Float Committee actually sang the theme from the "Muppet Show" while constructing their float? Pretty hard to believe huh? Believe it or not, it really happened. Know what else happened? The actors in "Petes Feat" actually forgot their lines while performing. As always though, the play went great even with those embarrassing mishaps. The workers at the home football games had some pretty embarrassing lapses of memory also. They had a lot of trouble trying to remember which colored ticket went to what item of food. It was not fun to get a hot dog when you handed in a ticket for hot chocolate. Mixing up orders would certainly make anyone red in the face. What else could happen? Just about anything. Harborfields is a unique place with unpredictable students always in some sort of "top secret" situation. All you have to do is watch for them.

High Tiden

Saturday morning October 18th: Homecoming.

Parade time was set for 1:00 and kickoff at 2:30. but Juniors had previous obligations, the dreaded PSAT's, clouded over the early morning. The Junior float was in trouble and needed finishing touches, the PSAT's coinciding with homecoming didn't exactly help, but the hard work and determination of the float committee paid off when the Juniors were named 1986 competition winners. For Junior bandmembers it was a race to do a quick change in time to march in the Broadway Parade.

Before the parade itself the Public Library grounds were flooded with students, parents and faculty racing every which way in preparation for the march to the High School. Each class float was receiving finishing touches. The Senior float was no ordinary float it was an ice cream float. The Junior's was in the traditional green and white displaying a 15 foot tornado and manequin football player, the theme "You be Illin'" a rap song by the popular group Ron-Dmc. The class of '89 picked up on Amityville's Crimson Tide Motto as did the freshman, Oldfield and Lahey. This years first was the addition of a faculty float, put together through the direction of Mrs. Emmerling and Mr. Armenio.

The Great Pretenders

It seemed as though our attempt would be futile. How could we, with no EXPERIENCE in children's theatre, possible convince one hundred ornery kindergardeners that never-never land was worthy of believing in and that Captain Hook was dastardly enough to "Boo" and "Hiss" at? How could we convince them to laugh at the right places, or even laugh at all?.

All of those fears still lurked in the back of our minds when the curtain opened on Sunday, October 19. The scene was set: a bunch of kids lost in never-never, smiling from ear to ear, yet feeling a bit ridiculous in floppy bows and mismatched sneakers made to clash with rainbow suspenders. The guys had a taste of what it was like to wear make-up and the girls had the opportunity to see how ridiculous the guys looked with pink lips, blue eyelids and rosey red cheeks. Yet even though the make-up and costumes the magic came through.

The children loved the rocking crocodilees and the fair indian maden. They laughed at the bungling pirates and the silly "mom and dad" and booed at Captain Hook. They had shown us what we had set out to teach them-that if we believed in ourselves strongly enough, they too would believe in us.

On closing night, the stage was struck and we left never-never land behind. But a piece of that magic will always be with those of us shared Pete's Feat, whether it was from behind the stage, or on it, or in the audience, because if you really believe, there will always be a never-never land.

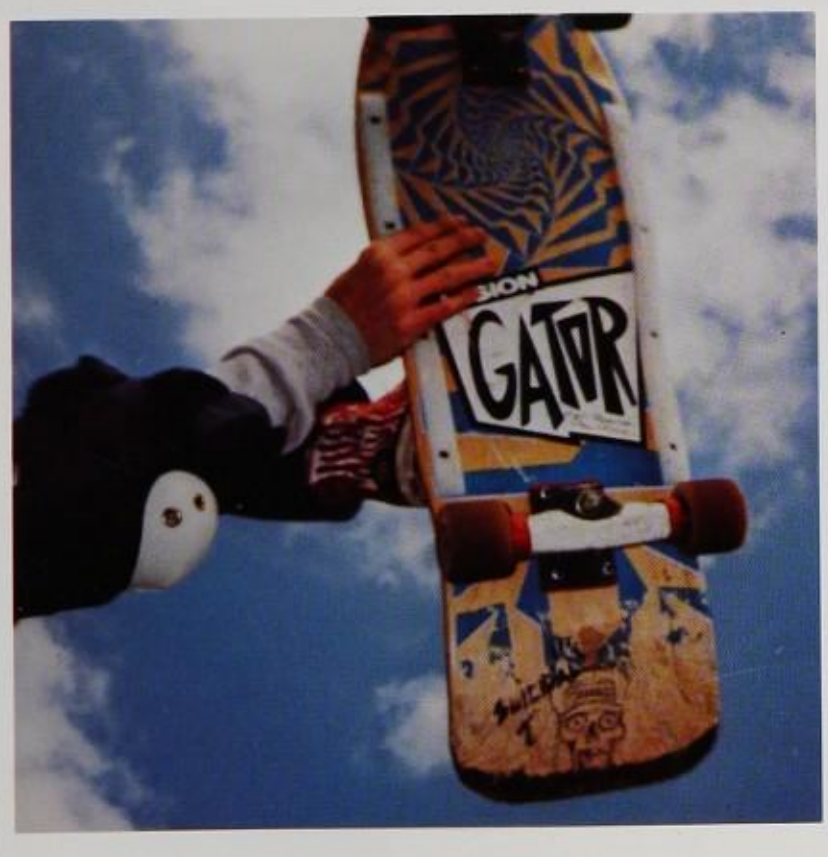
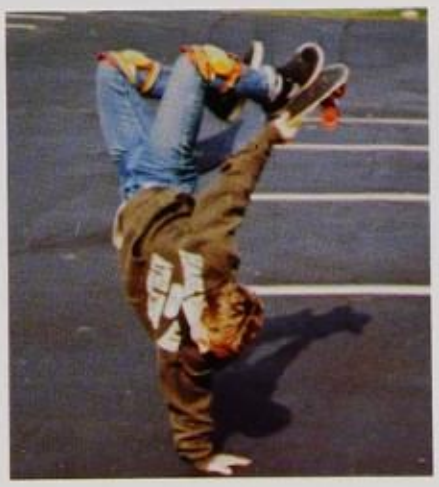
Skate Rats

Is that hard Sean ? Looks pretty easy to me.

Skate boarding is a sport that grew during the late 70's and has received added popularity in the 80's. The board design which was thin and long with flexible plastic was only good for crusing down long sloping roads. The new board designs are firmer so it's easier to attempt a wide range of tricks, including olie hops, inverts, hand paints, and many more. Skate boarding isn't really acclaimed as a sport like football or hockey, yet takes a variety of skills that the general public doesn't realize (agility, concentration, speed, and good eye-hand coordination).

The music of the skating scene is called hard-core or thrash music. It's a loud form of music encompassing such bands as The Crubsuckers, D.R.I., Gangreen, Minor Threat, Black Flag, Circle Jerks, and Suicidal Tendencies.





If Chris Hawkins falls off, he can always use the parking space.

Mike Muscaros decides to use his hands instead of his feet.

For some students at Harborfields, working is fun, or a new experience and for others it's a hassle, but they have no choice. Whether we enjoy work or not, it is a responsibility we must accept. Along with those those who appreciate work and enjoy it, there are many who find jobs to be a waste of time. It would be easy to forget about the job and live off our parents, but then we would go through life not accepting responsibilities. Although some hate work, the money received from it is valuable and needed. It doesn't matter if the money is ours. We choose to spend it our way. The Harborfields Public Library has always been a reliable source of employment for Harborfields students. Currently, senior Rachel Wifall and junior Craig Gilette are busy keeping things in order at the library. Joel Rodgers also works a part-time job at Record World , where he spends his time helping customers and enjoying music. Joel has to make time for other things while working part-time. When he is not at work he is out with friends, practicing in a band and working on artwork for his upcoming college education. Kevin Greiner is another who works part-time. Kevin spends many long hours as a busboy at the "Original Schooner". Like other working students, Kevin has to make time for other activities. He practices in a band and sees his friends on free time. His weekends are usually spent working until late hours of the night, while parties at his friends' houses are going on. Although work for Kevin is tiring, he still finds time to do the things he enjoys most like spending his paycheck. As we grow older we all have reponsibilities to accept. For many students that includes working. Some of us dread it, but others make it an important experience, balanced with their free time.

Working at Key Foods can be tiring, but Stephanie Stagner enjoys filling grocery bags.

The Feet and the Beat

Four years in the marching band and what a better way to remember the last game of the season than to spend it at the Meadowlands Stadium. As ninth graders we performed for the Jets. Once again the band has been asked to play before 80,000 people. It is an honor and a thrilling experience to be known as "The Best Band on Long Island". After hours of practicing, our accomplishments really shine. At each football game there is a feeling of pride as the bands run onto the field. The fans shout with excitement and I know they expect us to be the best. Every year we perform at Hofstra and really show off our "stuff". Considering our enormous size which encompasses a variety of the student body it is amazing how much we accomplished in the forty five minutes alloted to us each day. Every practice isn't perfect but with the guidance of Mr. Domencetti our drills always come together. Along with the drill team and color guard we can really create a show!

SOUND and STYLE

Roughly ten years ago a new genre of bands started hitting the clubs in England. These bands were considered by most of the public to be outrageous, obnoxious, and thoroughly untalented. They presented radical social views such as anarchism in a very blunt and sometimes rather crude way. The music was soon branded as "Punk" and the press ate it right up. Punk was a new way for youth to rebel against society, not entirely unlike the greasers of the 1950's or the hippies of the 1960's. Arguabley the most infamous band to emerge in the 1970's was the "Sex Pistols". Their leader was Johnny Rotten. He shocked England with his outrageous appearance and lyrics that seemed just about anti-everything.He became a cult hero.

Soon there were young people wearing tattered clothing held together with safety pins and leather jackets covered with buttons of their favorite band. Punk had developed a sort of fashion all its own with the help of the "Sex Pistols" and many other Punk rock pioneers of the 1970's. Other forefathers of Punk were the " Velvet Underground " whose lead singer was none other than Lou Reed, "Generation X" whose lead singer was the now famous "Billy Idol", and " The Damned" who were the first Punk band to record an album. "The Clash" at this time were also contributing to the newly born Punk scene.

Meanwhile back in the states we were having a Punk revolution of our own. The most notable of the bands to come from it were the "Ramones" and the "Dead Kennedys". By the time the "Sex Pistols" toured America, Punk was very big. Kids with Mohawks or completely shaved heads could be seen in almost every major city.The Punk rock bands played in small clubs where spitting and hurling bottles at the sight of a stage replaced applause.Slam dancing became popular in these clubs. Slam dancing is a sort of energetic explosion of a group of punks in which they jump up and down and hurl themselves into one another. Its all meant to be friendly athletisism but there is always a very real possibility of violence. I would have to say that one must see slam dancing to understand it completely. The idealogy of Punk is very difficult to explain. Especially since just about everyone thinks of it a little bit differently. Everything about Punk rock is a hit below the belt to conformity. Everything about Punk spells "different". That is one of the reasons why looking outrageous is a Punk speciality.

Punk is also against commercialism, big ego's, selling out and that sort of thing. One of Punk's biggest attributes is its shocking power. With names like "Jimmy Gestapo" or "Sid Vicious" these Punks are getting a message across to people through pure shock value. Whether it be anti-fascist, anti-war, or anti-government, one is almost slapped in the face by the singers ideas. Doing your own thing is probably the biggest part of Punk Rock's sketchy philosophy. With the death of Sid Vicious in 1979 Punk seemed to come to a grinding halt. Not much came on the Punk scene for quite sometime and it seemed to dissapear as quickly as it appeared. Then almost ten years after its birth Punk was reborn or at least came back in the public eye. Hardcore as Punk is referred now is very much alive and filled with vigor. The scene seems to be growing and branching out in many directions. The first of which is sort of cross between Punk and the music of heavy metal. This new branch of punk called "Speedmetal" or "Metalcore" has unfortunately oozed in to the scene. The music may be similar to some hardcore punk but the idealogy is completely different. Heavy metal consists of everything that Punk shouldn't stand for. I sincerely hope this is just a passing phase in the Punk scene as the world already has more egotistical and satanist people than it can deal with. Some of the more creative branches are the physicedelia revival we have recently seen among some groups such as "Jeses and Mary Chain" and the "Cult". But for the most part Punk remains fast and loud and an always new and exciting alternative to mainstream music.

Seniors Sean Cavanaugh and Sue Sullivan, long time fans of punk/ new wave music, take a break from art class and show us that Mod and Rocker can peacefully coexist.

The Cafeteria Life

...not in the hallowed halls of Harborfields High, not in the homes of its illustrious students, not even in the gilded leaves of history to be passed down to posterity, shall we find quite the life that exists in a high school cafeteria. And we're not talking about what's growing on the food, we're referring to the unique aroma, the cacophony and the visual collage, successfully achieved only by the cafeteria. Once experienced, it will never be forgotten (unlike lesser experiences such as last night's math homework). Think back. There was that kid, two tables across from you, who would shlop his Sunkist and bologna sandwich into his mouth at the same time. And the "lunch lady" who would clean away your lunch before you were quite done.

It had all started with the annual September ritual of staking out a table. Then, everyday for the next nine months, you'd return to your table, move any stained paperplates, partially full juice cartons and other remnants of previous lunch periods, to someone else's table; and then begin your meal. For Seniors, there is a secondary cafeteria, the "Lounge" - perenially in danger of extinction.

As with all institutions, the cafeteria has its traditions. The unspoken rule that those at the end of the line will wait an extra five minutes for those buying Frito's, fruit punch and coffee cake to finish cutting ahead of them. The garbage bins, distinct in shape and scent, strategically positioned for three pointers. The ever - popular, occasionally soft and chewy, choclate chip cookie. And, the daily readings from the wise words of Safety Pup himself.

Let us end with the recognition of the work of the cafeteria staff. They are the group that caters to the whim of the language department every year during foreign language week (the highlight of this year, must have been chow mein on Ash Wednesday). If you missed the excitement, March was Nutrition Month. March 9-13 was "Be New York Fit" week (did you catch Liberty Coleslaw, Empire State Milk, Coney Island Frank on a Bun?) Some of the lesser known delights that they bring us throughout the year are "Fresh Figs", "Blueberry Crunch" and "Orange Peanutbutter spread on Celery Sticks".

Bon Appetit!

POWDER PUFF

March 28, 1987 marks the 30th annual Powder Puff contest of Harborfields High School. This year finds the Seniors and their theme of "Seniors Through Time" challenged by the Juniors and their theme of "Walt Disney and the Wonderful World of Juniors".

The highlight of this years Powder Puff is the Senior dance. The dance spans four time periods; Caveman Time, the 50's, the 80's and the future. Choreographers Gayle Villani, Marina Pastorelli and Jenny Cook spent hours planning the dance for the seniors. The girl's patience were put to the test as they tried to teach the dancers (many with two left feet) the art of tripping-the light-fantastic.

Organizing and managing of the senior extravaganza this year fell on the shoulders of Rosanne Gerard. Long, stressful, nerve-wracking nights were spent organizing skits, set decorations and general coordination for the big event. She expresses her sincerely appreciation to those who have helped lighten the load.

After four years of Powder Puff experience and hours of planning, practicing and occasional disagreements the seniors hope to emerge victorious in their final Powder Puff.

VACATION

Kim Wille and Laura Carillo attempt to strenghten the economy of Europe by spending a few dollars.

Joe Carillo and Kenny Wille enjoy the slopes in Kitzbuhel, Austria.

Everyone looks forward to vacations for basically one common reason - that there is no school. People enjoy the thought of being able to sleep late and do what they choose that day. They like the idea of no homework, no classes, and free time.

This year, many people have also enjoyed spending their vacations away from our community. The two most popular places this year were Florida and New England. Many people enjoy going to Florida because of the weather. They are tired of the cold snowy winter and can't wait to get to a place with a hot and sunny climate. There, they enjoy water-skiing, swimming, sunbathing, and boating. While people vacationed all over Florida, many people went to Fort Lauderdale and Orlando - of course to visit Disney World. Then they come home with nice, healthy looking tans.

However, some people like to stay in the cold weather but still want to go away. Usually when a family travels further north, they aim to go skiing. People have gone on day trips, weekends, or even for a whole vacation week. Students have gone with their families, friends, or have even arranged some crazy ski trips for themselves.

Still, these are not the only places people have enjoyed their vacations at. Some students have gone to Mexico or California to enjoy the sun and sights. Other people have gone skiing in the Colorado Rockies and the Alpes, where they have enjoyed a different type of skiing. Many people have also vacationed in Europe and enjoyed all of the old sights and history. Ultimately though, whether people go away or stay at home the thing everyone enjoys is doing what they want to do when they want to do it.

JUNIOR VARIETY TALENT SHOW

On January 30th and 31st at 8:00PM the Harborfields High School auditorium was lit up and filled with singing, one-liners, and music. Leslie Hilgeman, a junior, emceed the 1987 Varity Talent Showcase, the first of its kind. The show featured 25 acts of singing, dancing and comedy. Junior class advisor, Dr. Gary Aumiller, cleverly coordinated the acts so they would follow the format of a true show - not just acts following one another. The finale featured the entire cast performing "Walk Like An Egyptian". The show was a hugh success, almost selling out both nights.

The stars of the show included singers Electra Jacob, Mim Calamari, The Last Alliance, Jennie Duberstein, Jodie Zweibel, Christian and Mike Butler, Carol MacMillian, Dr. Aumiller, Dennis Reichold, Chris Franson, Tracy Berliner, Katana Sanford, Angela Cheng, Chris MacMillian, Mike Vinciguerra, Kristen Palmieri, and Renee Turner. The band, Vista Cruiser, comprised of Sean Cavanaugh, Kevin Greiner, Hope Leopold, Joe Paradise, Glen Ross, Jim Stellato, and Sue Sullivan provided back up for many of the performers and also performed several of their own selections.

Tripping-the-light-fantastic were dancers Carolyn Gerardi, Kim Calia, Michelle Warheit, Jodie Zweibel, Lucia McClorey, Mary Norwesh, and Claudia Jamison. Comic relief was provided by Vasante Marathe, Brenda Clark, Diane Schnittman, Dan Schadle, Dennis Reichold, Lisa Brownstein, Carol and Chris MacMillian, Mike Vinciguerra, Jim Ryerson, Matt Hahn, Dan Hyde, Nick Armilla and Dennis Gallagher. Comedy acts included satires about teachers, the president and Monty Python.

The History of Jape - Matt Hahn and Dan Hyde.

"Love me like the first time again..." sings Katana Sanford.

The ever gracefully poised Claudia Jamison dances to Separate Lives.

Vasante Marthe exhibits his presidential talent.

CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE

"Hey! Did you hear? He's out today; test is postponed. Thank god! I can't believe it... but Doc, we have two other test the same day, you CAN'T have our essay due that day... oh no, here comes Miller with another one of his experiments... what was the formula for the circumference of a circle?!?... Yes , Mr. Mayer, we have hit the ball more than twice today... four tests today! Can you believe this?... Dingbats! You're all dingbats... Well, actually I haven't given much thought to unscrambling an egg, Mr. Thomsen... Bonjour! Comment allez-vous? what did she say ?... hey, Pops!... brain-fried, that's it, I've been positively brain-fried by all this... why did I take this class... do you have last night's homework?... so my parents tell me I have to buckle down for the third quarter... Modus what?... Did you hear? The PSAT's are in... have you read the history chapter yet?... Gutentag, du lump du lump... cutting plane, what's a cutting plane, Mr. I.?..."

These are all voices from the academic life at HF. We're offered everything from studying logarithms to playing minor sevenths. Much of it is tough, and sometimes giving up seems the easiest thing to do. For those who stick it out, though, the rewards are plenty. Whether it's becoming one of the dozens of students who earn a Regents diploma every year, or simply finishing a plate in mechanical drawing class, or getting through that dreaded speech in English class, the achievements, as well as the hurdles, come in all shapes and sizes. In this way, each academic year makes us stronger and wiser.

A sly glance to the side... we caught sophomore Chris Mercier in the midst of another math test.

ACADEMICALLY FIT

The U.S. Academic Decathlon team competes in contests in the areas of math, science, history, language, literature, economics and fine arts. The contest includes an essay, a both prepared and impromtu speech, and a superquiz. The team is made up of fifteen junior and senior students. The coaches are faculty members. The team attends many practice sessions and works hard to ready it's self for the competition. The Decathlon members meet for an hour after school three times a week. Although at times the training seems overwhelming, it is a gratifying experience. We gained a great deal of knowledge and formed many close relationships.

The members of the Decathlon team would like to extend their gratitude to all the teachers who have helped them train, and to offer a special "thank you" to Mr. Klein for his dedication, hard work, and comic relief. We found Decathlon to be a fun and rewarding experience - even though we nearly starved to death.

Angela Cheng,

"Hey, this isn't so bad after all." In the midst of paperwork and fact sheets, Junior Robin Mendelsohn manages a laugh with her teammate. Decathlon members are expected to stay on top of all the extra reading that is assigned to them.

Senior Billy Kennedy looks on while fellow decathlon member, Mark Perkins, raises a question. Faculty members were there every step of the way, to answer any questions.

What?! Another quiz?! That's right. This time we see seniors Kenny Shindler James Como, Peter Bakel and Chris Galasso, all in the picture.

This is Darwyn Az znaro!

Senior Eric Gallo listens in on what his friend has to say.

The usual clowning around goes on as the teacher explains the homework assignment.

CLOCKWORK CLASSICS

Mrs. Driscoll waits while the class finishes up the test.

In the beginning of the year, my English teacher asked the class to list the worst book that they had ever been assigned to read;this is going to be tough to narrow it down to one, I thought.

First, I thought of ninth grade and THE GOOD EARTH; but then someone shouted out "WUTHERING HEIGHTS!". I had to agree, that was pretty slow reading. Then there was THE KING MUST DIE from my sophomore year...

Maybe it had been the essays that I had to write about the books that had really left the bad aftertaste. Essays are a pain (they try to make you think), especially compared to the easy, thirty word spelling tests some teachers give. Unfortunately, it's not something that can be avoided in Harborfields, where the English department thoroughly prepares us for Regents in the junior year, or for the advance placement tests as seniors.

The same applies for term papers. This year, everyone from freshmen to seniors were writing papers. The topics would range from any subject of interest to a specific literary figure.

The department offers some variety with exposure to creative writing (Dr. Lemonedes, the department chairperson,offers a course in creative writing.). Some teachers may give assignments in fiction writing or, as the eleventh graders in the honors program did, students may write poetry (iambic pentameter, what??). As always, students are encourged to submit their work to the Zephyr, the school literary magazine.

There were many new faces in the English department this year. Mrs. Driscoll taught one of the honors eleven courses, Mrs. Schmid led tenth and eleventh grade classes, and Mrs.Derrin has a student teacher.

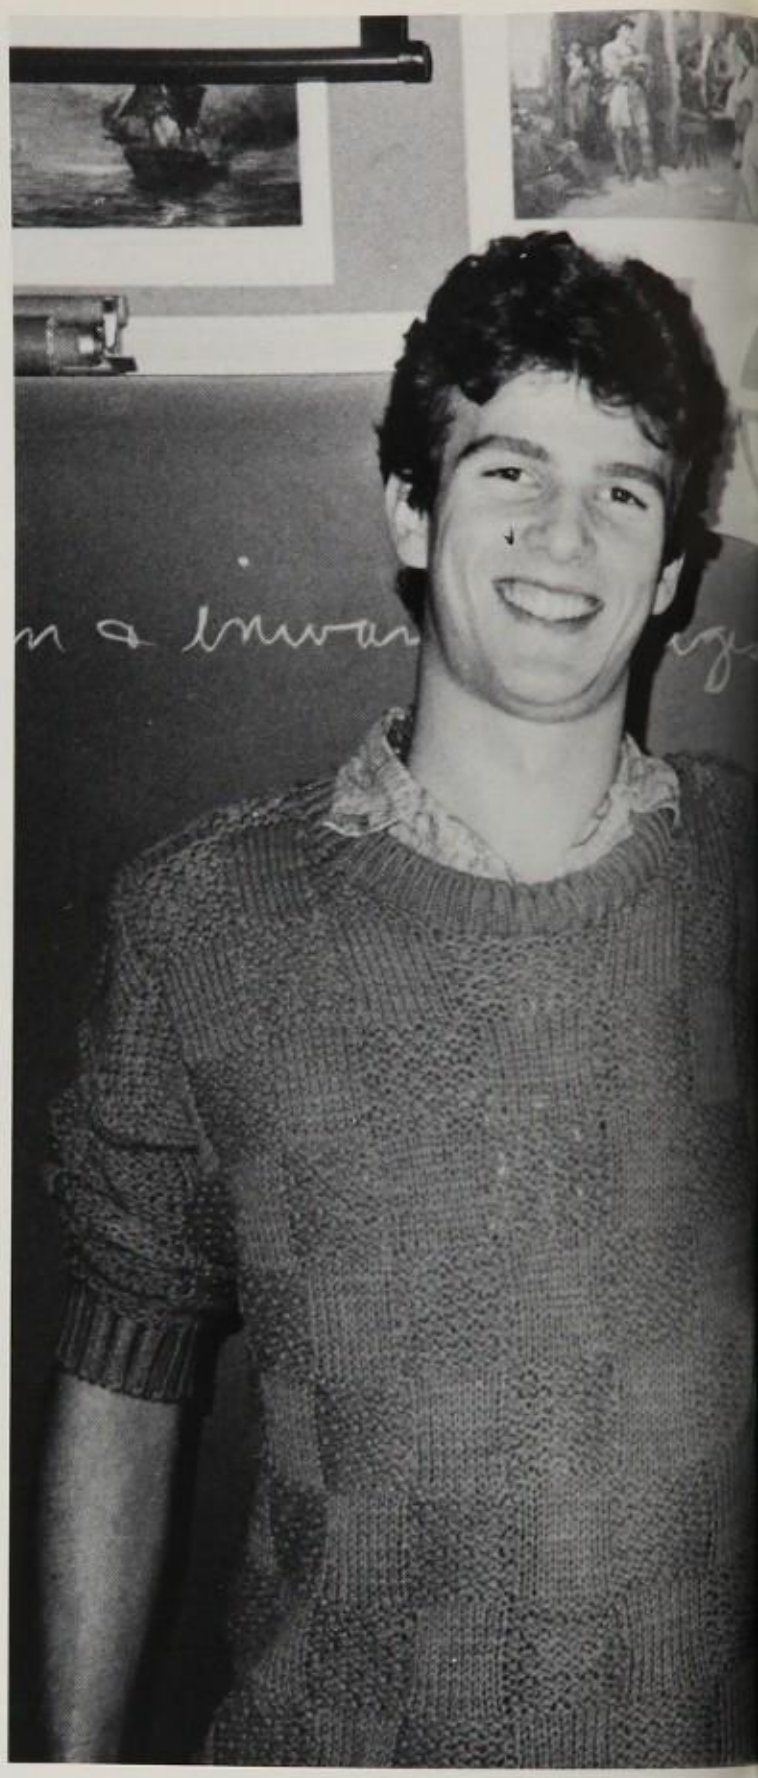
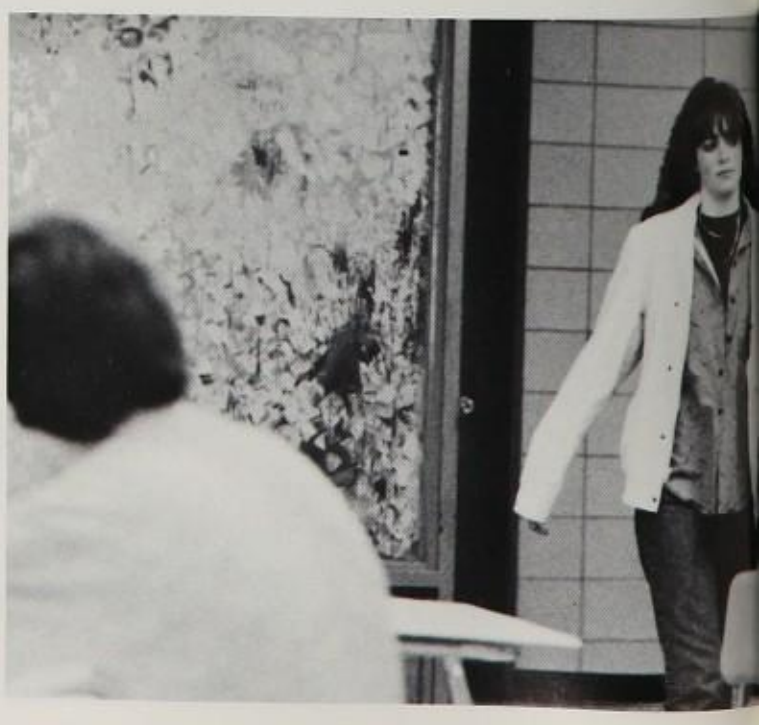
LINES OF COMMUNICATION

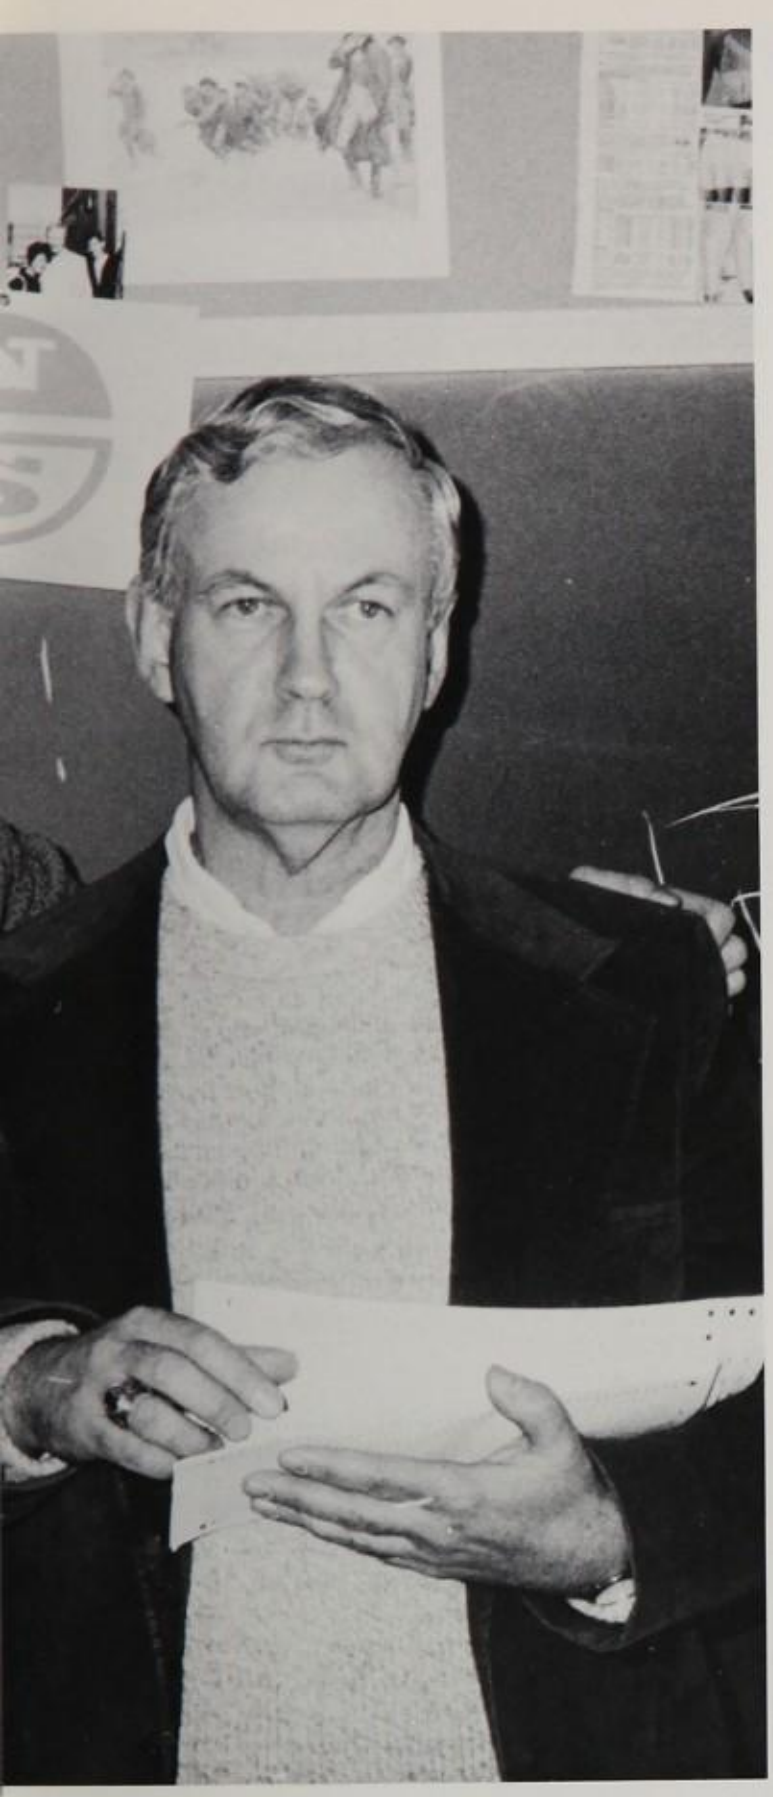
Almost every student at Harborfields has taken language at some point in their high school career- you HAVE to!- but many people are unaware of the opportunities that are available through the language department (aside from forty minutes of conjugating verbs). People like Richard Shellhas and Chrissy Hajagoz have taken advantage of the opportunites offered in our school. Richard, the winner of the Congress Bundestag Scholarship, was selected out of 260 people nationwide to spend his senior year in Hamburg, Germany. Chrissy Hajagos, a junior, is on an exchange in Ulm, Germany. The life style in Europe is totally different from that of Harborfields. The last I heard from Chrisy, she and her friends had rented a villa on the French Riviera! Likewise, we have students from abroad here at Harborfields. Achim Kretchmer, is a student from Germany. He exchanged homes with Crissy. Also Luis Barcenilla has come here from Spain to study here in the United States. People who are not ready for a culture shock will opt to get just a taste of it through our foregin languages clubs. The German, French, and Spanish clubs have activities such as foreign films, trips to restaurents, and parties. This year the Spanish Club sponsered a clothing drive to support the Hispanics on Long Island. Mrs. Khatir and Mrs. Scheef are two teachers who are very active in the language department and are always coming up with new ideas for the clubs. Students who have continued with their languages for five years will be taking their Regents in June. A.P. courses are offered in French and Spanish.

Conjugating verbs? No sweat. Sophomore Marilyn Ramos focuses in on her test.

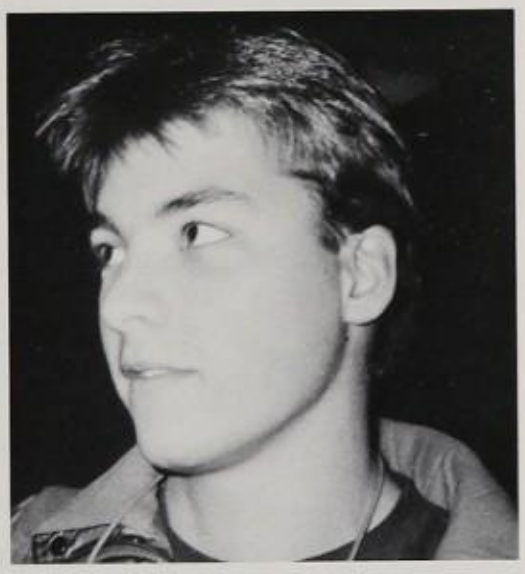


The Buddy System: Achiem Kretchmer, German exchange student, gives Papa Thoelen a hug. Say "Cheez", Pops.



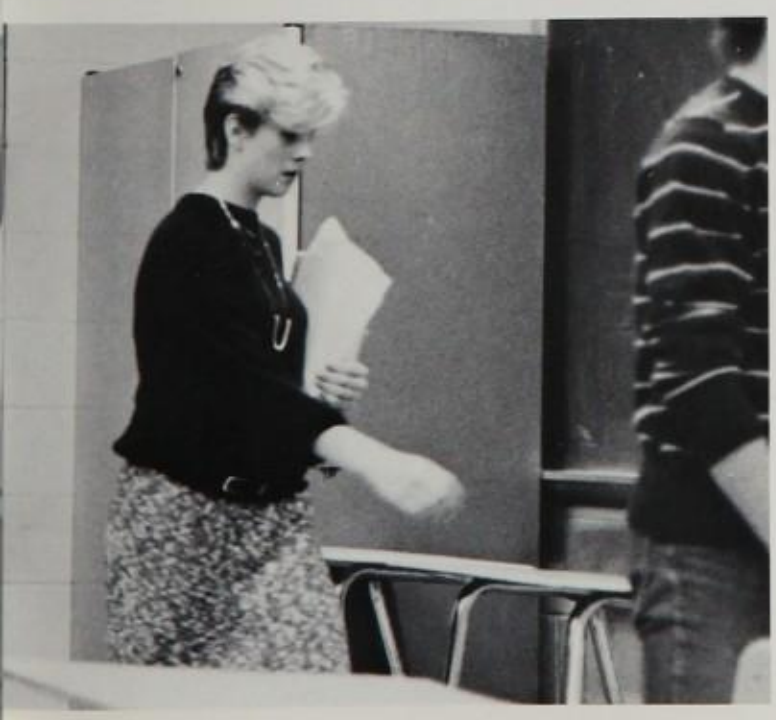


Me gusta bonito mujer. Qu'est-ce que j'ai dit au-dessus?
Rob Leas, '87

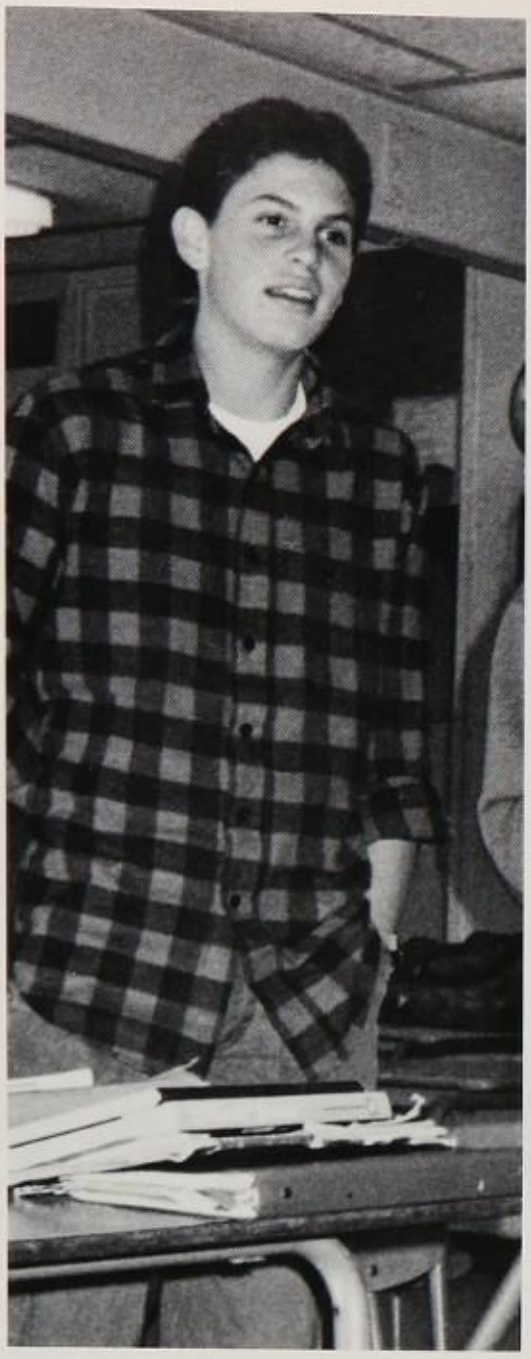


Is this a thrill... Corrine Brown, senior, barely contains her excitement over French Club plans to sell souvenirs.

Softspoken Luis Barcenilla, exchange student from Spain, talks with his friends.

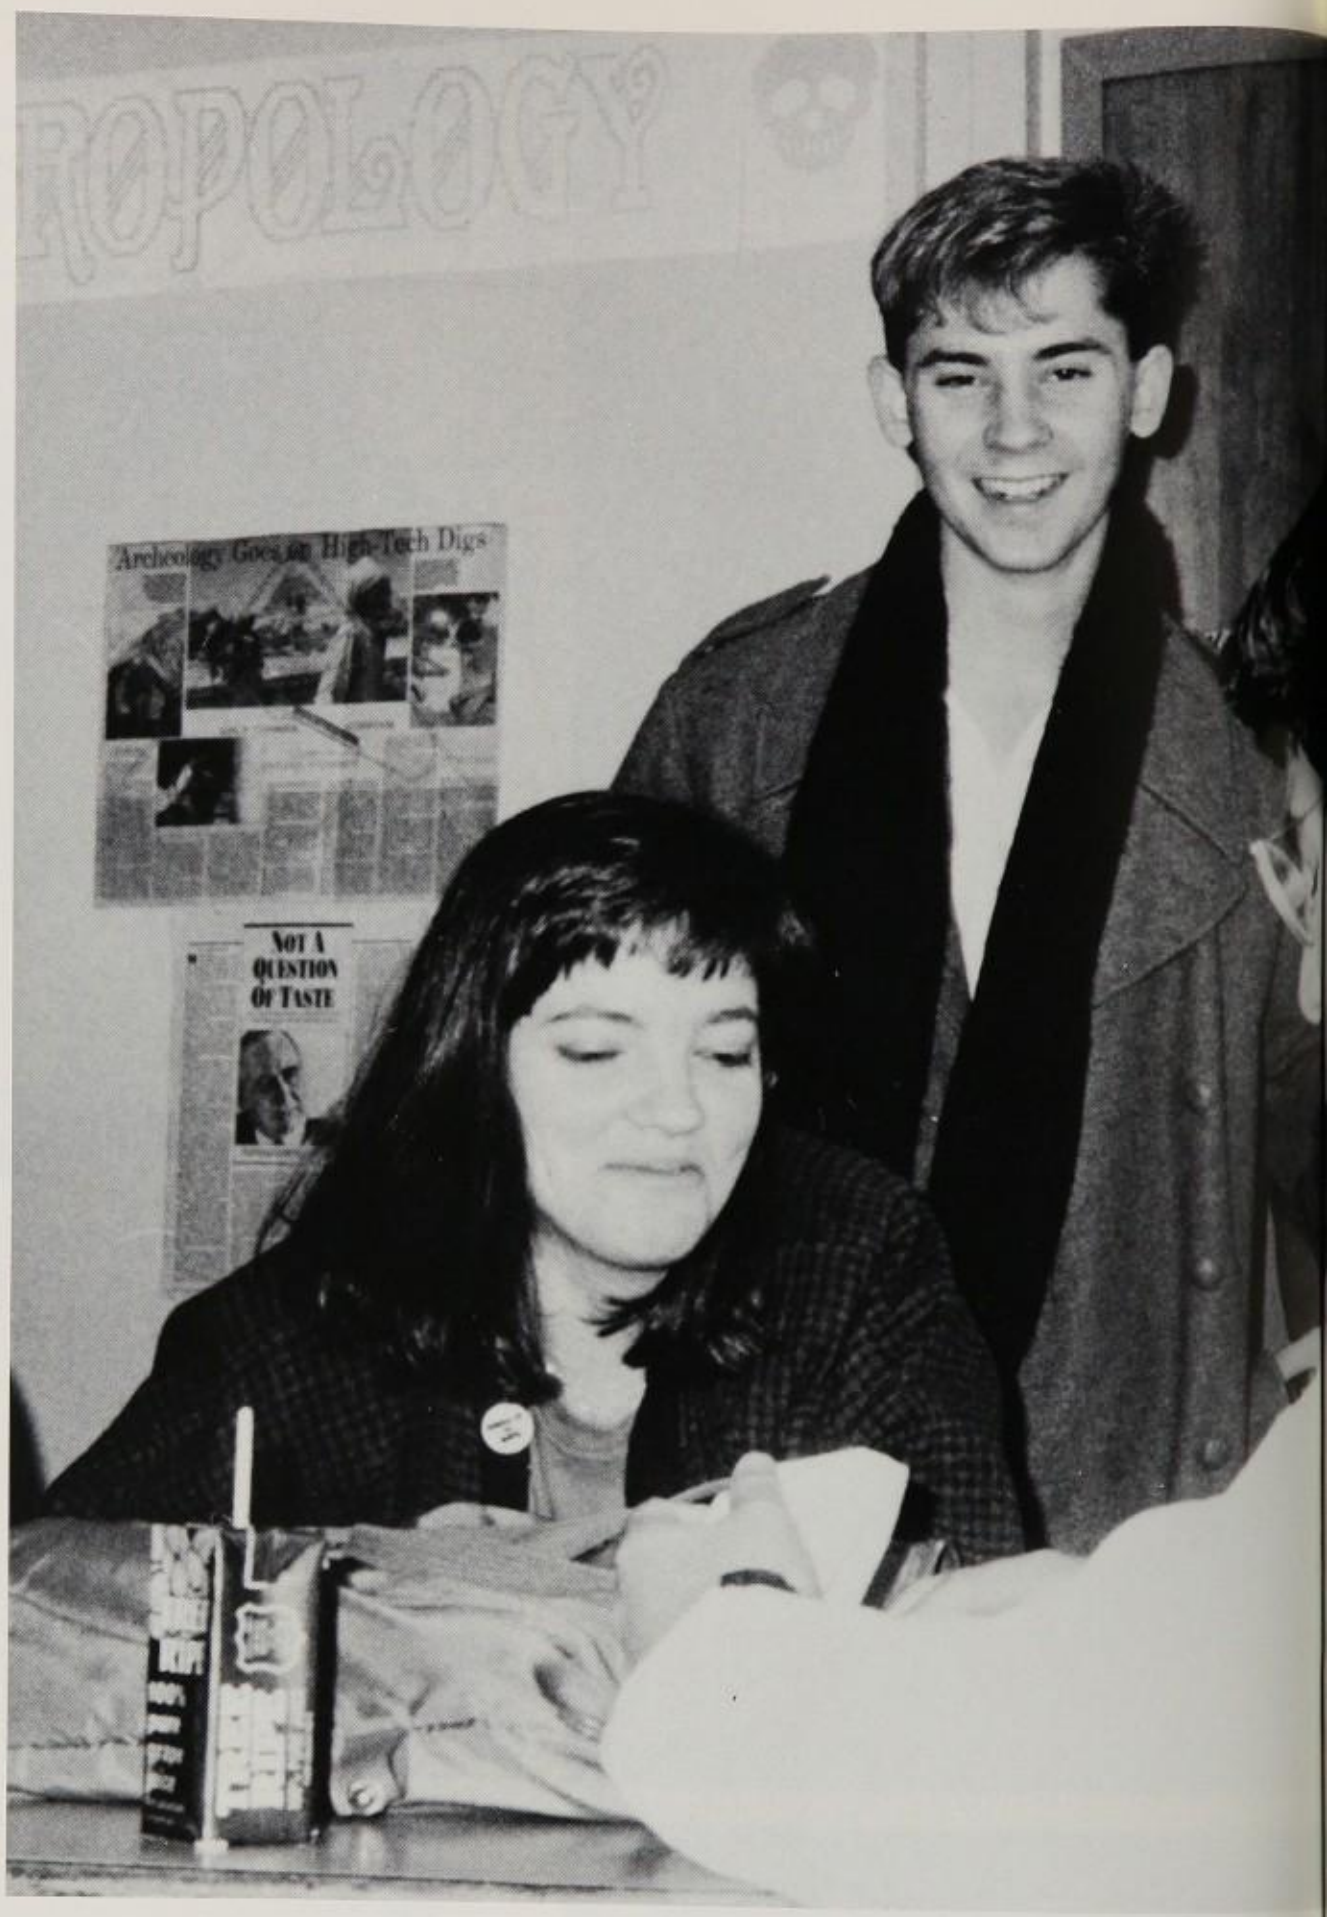


The class slowly files in... seniors Natalie Bredin and Roseanne Gerard face another 40 minutes of class.



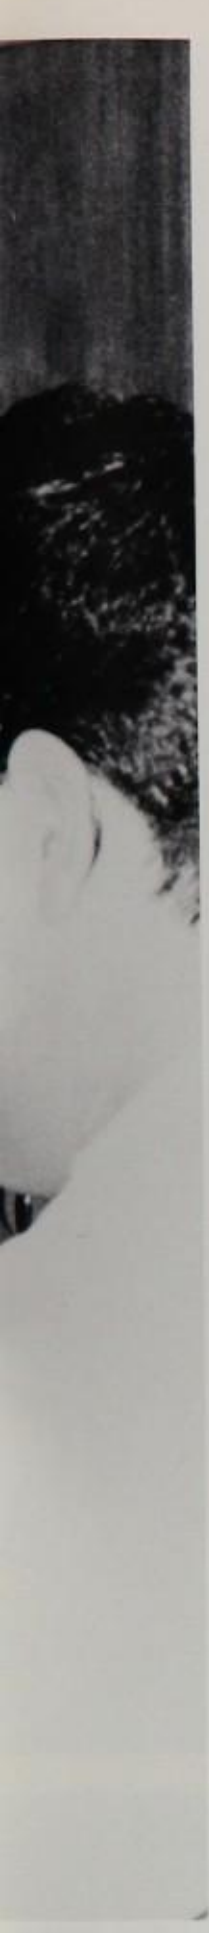
"Now let me tell you what REALLY happened during the American revolution..." Matt Kirschner, junior, explains it all in his A.P. History class.

What's this, lunch? Senior Richard Paris brings some food for thought to class. With him are seniors Joel Rodgers and Mary Campbell.



Think about it; after senior year no more AP exams, DBQ's or memorization of boring facts - at least 'til college.

Claudia Colasante, "87"



more than KEEPING IT ON THE RECORD

Students at Harborfields are encouraged to discover the mysteries of the past with the help of the history department. The quest for truth starts in ninth grade when freshmen attempt to understand the mysteries of Asiatic, Oriental and African cultures. Sophomores then delve into the complexities of Europe's vast history. Juniors take an in depth look at America's development. The last year brings us back to European history, for the completion of the average student's voyage in to the past. History is one of the most important subjects taught at Harborfields, because a democratic society can not function well if the voters do not have a basic understanding of their past. History repeats itself. When a person studies history, s/he will realize that people react to similar circumstances the same way again and again. A person who understands history will be better able to judge how people react. This understanding helps them to vote more intelligently. Therefore, it is easy to see why, if everyone is to contribute to the government, everyone has to understand history. The secrets of history make up what is probably the most important mystery for the Harborfields student to solve.

Lenore Neville, "86"

Friday's exam couldn't be on the minds of seniors Kirstin Werner and Jennifer Sampson as they share a laugh in Mr. Klein's AP History class.

"Well let me tell ya whatcha gotta do first..." Mr. Klein fills in sophomore Devon Williams by the History Club bulletin board.

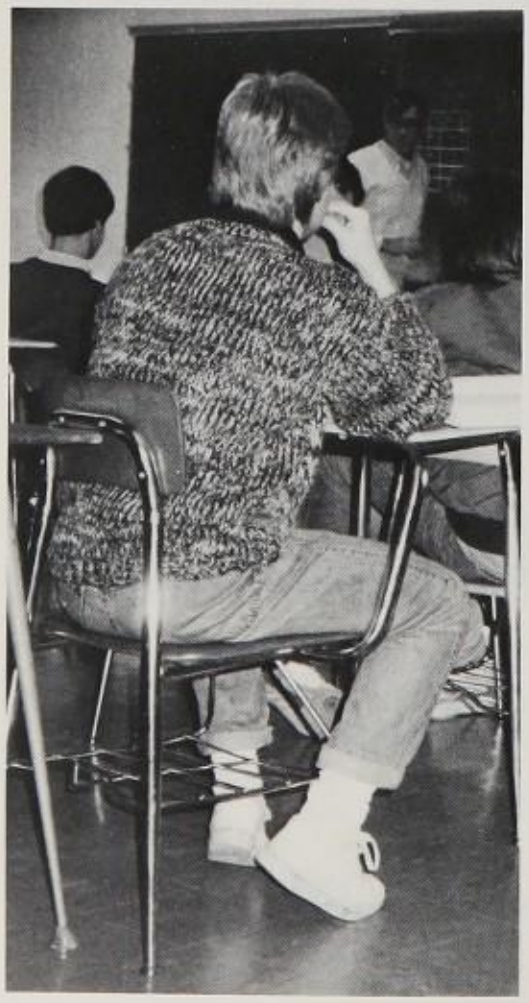
Ready and willing to learn: seniors Adam Balkan and Mike Malone are all set for Mr. Hall's history class. Where are the books, guys?

SIN ALPHA COS BETA: TALKING IN TERMS OF MATH

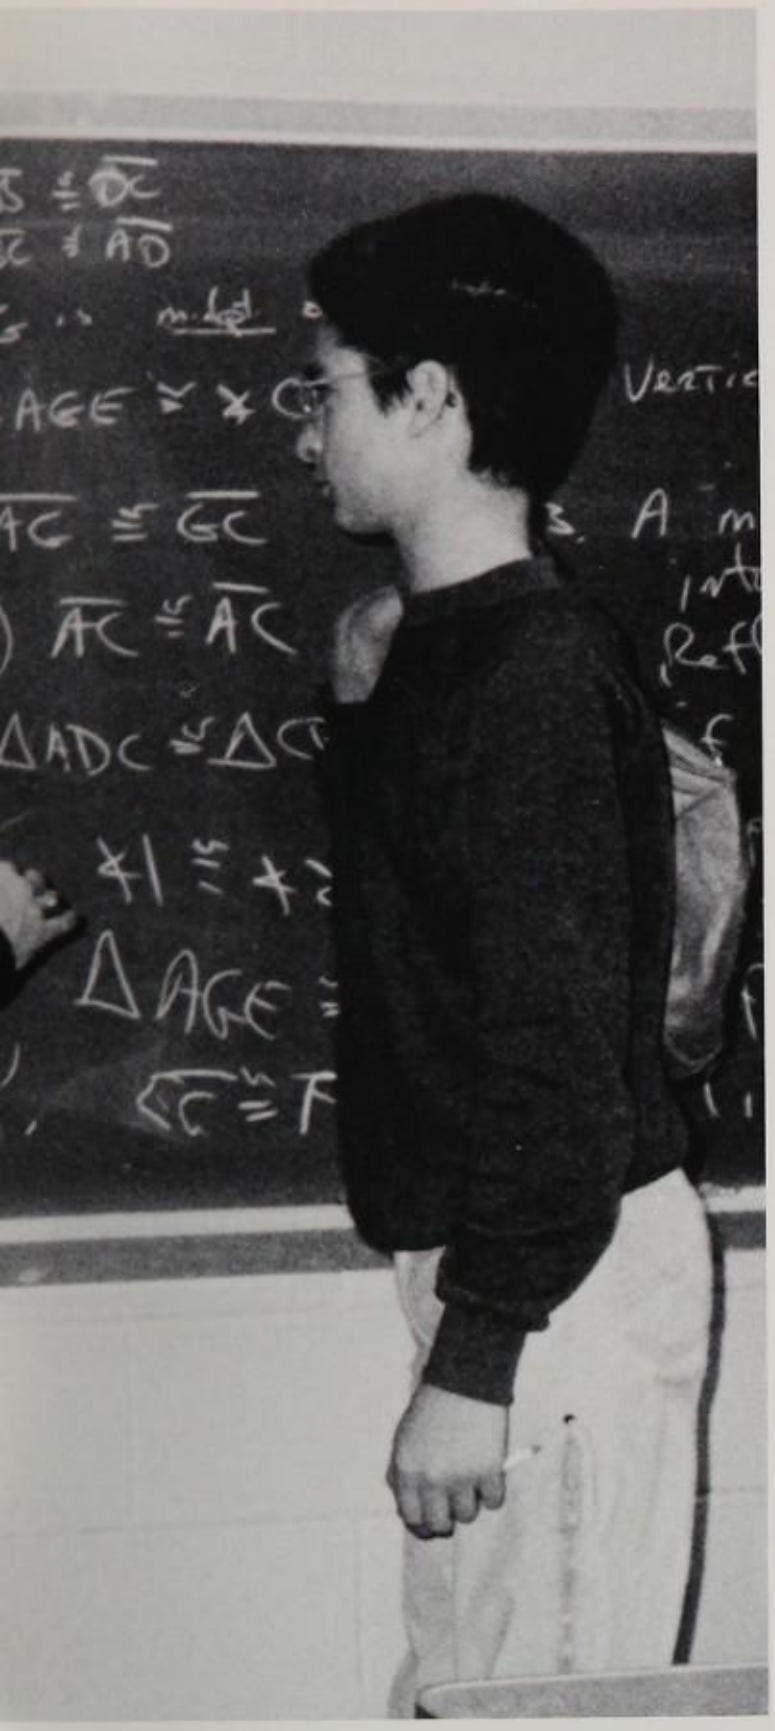
"Psst, psst, what your anwser to number 3?"-Sound familiar? There's a good chance that you may have heard this in HF's math wing. Math is especially hard subject for many, because it is an exact science; your answer is either right or it is wrong. Harborfields is proud to have a fine math department. This can be greatly attributed to the faculty headed by Mrs. Vavasseur. One student said of Math,"It is like trying to put your car keys in your house door. Unless you have the right key the door won't open even a little bit. In Math the problem can't be a little bit solved"

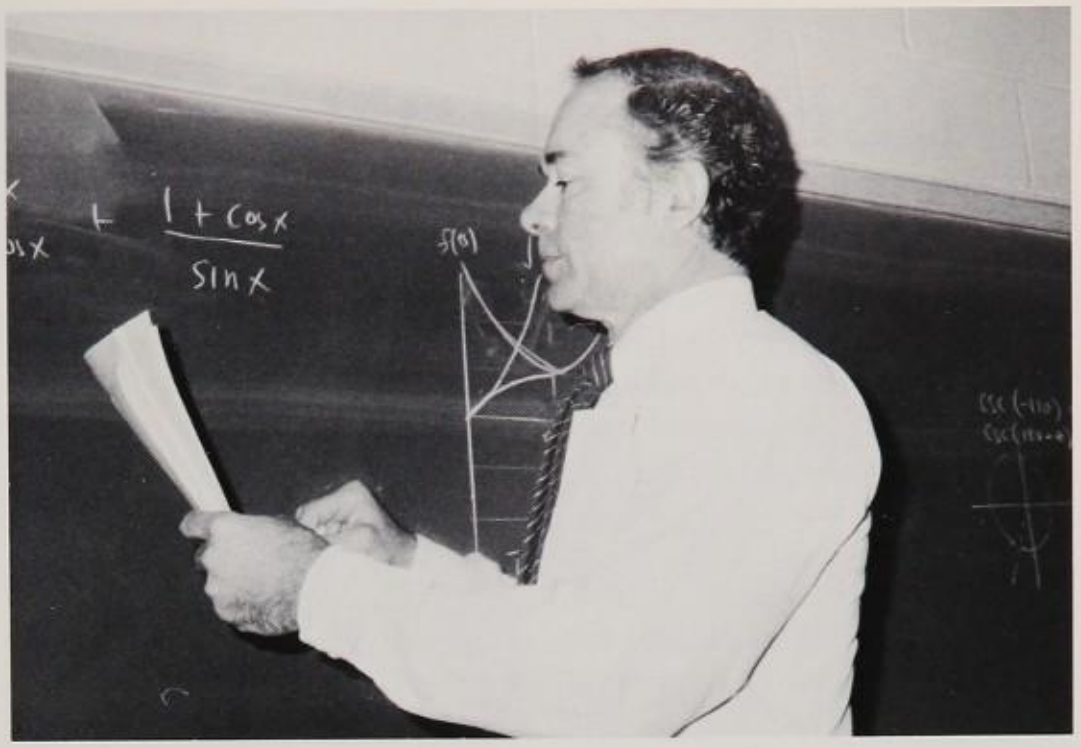
Math is a cruel reminder of my own stupidity.

James Anzalone, '88



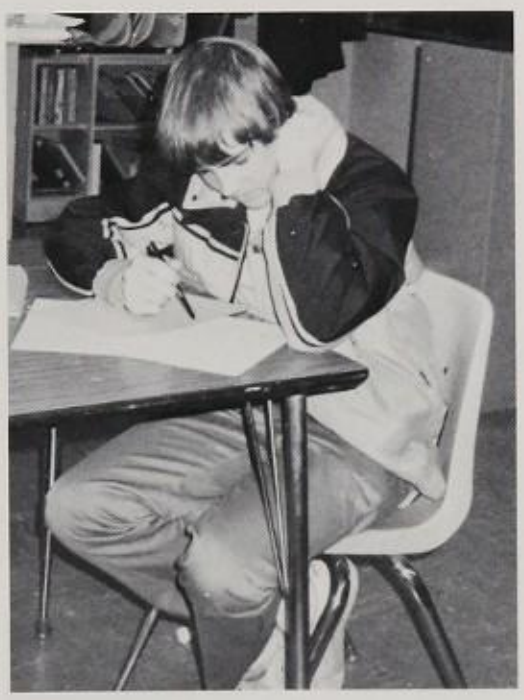
Mr. Hickerson goes to the board to graph it out for his students.





"Are we having fun yet?" Mr. Dale caught in the action; here he explains sin's and cos's to his eleven honors class.

Hard at work, David Meagher applies himself to the problems.



"But that's not modus ponens!" Mr. Kissam erases his beloved proofs, as sophomore Shawn Creedon stays for a little help.

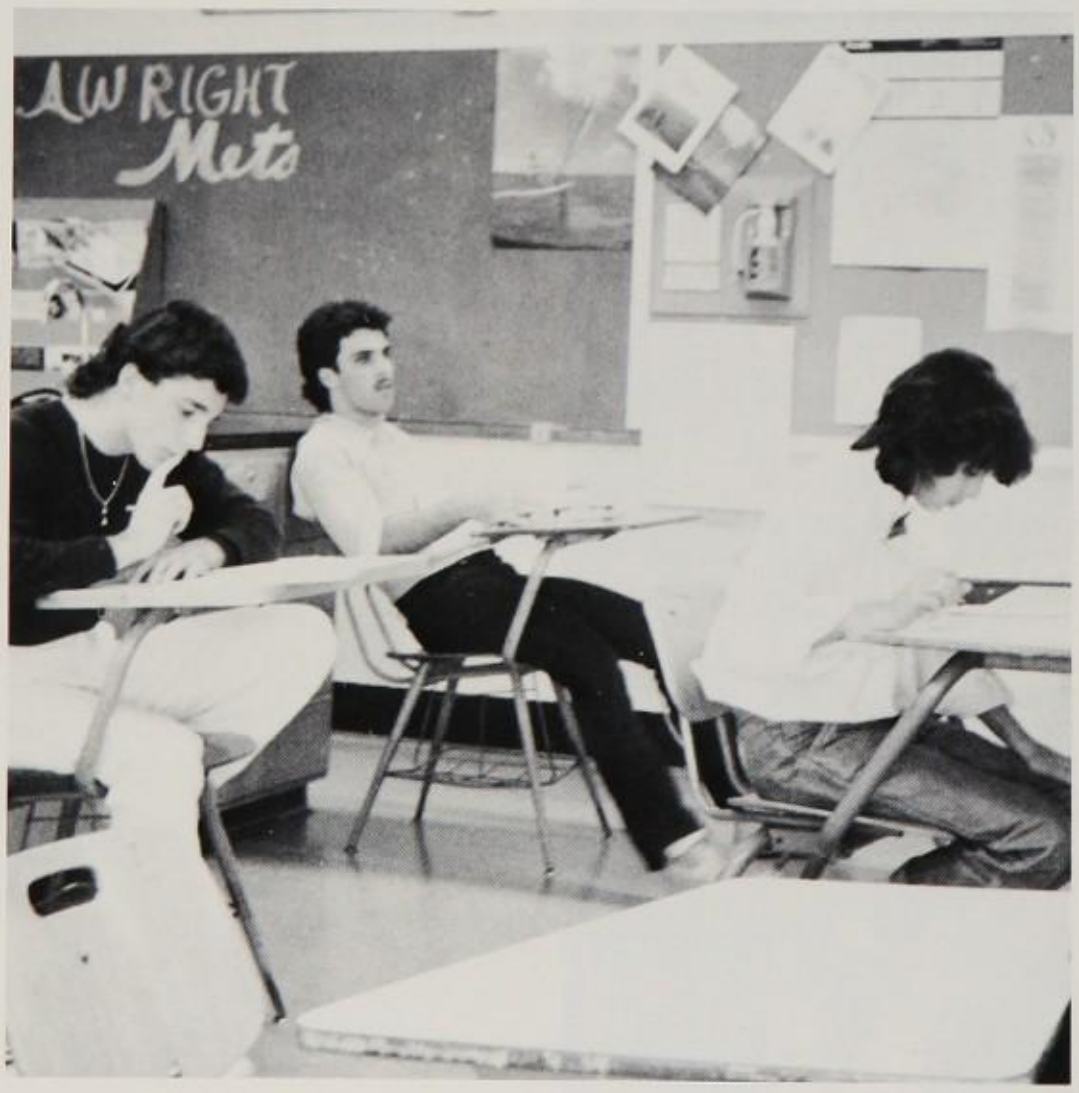
Mr. Mandel tries to unravel the mystery of it all, as he lends a hand to one of his students.

Are you smiling in math class, John? Mr. Dale hadn't given back the Friday's trig test, when we caught up with junior John Maher.

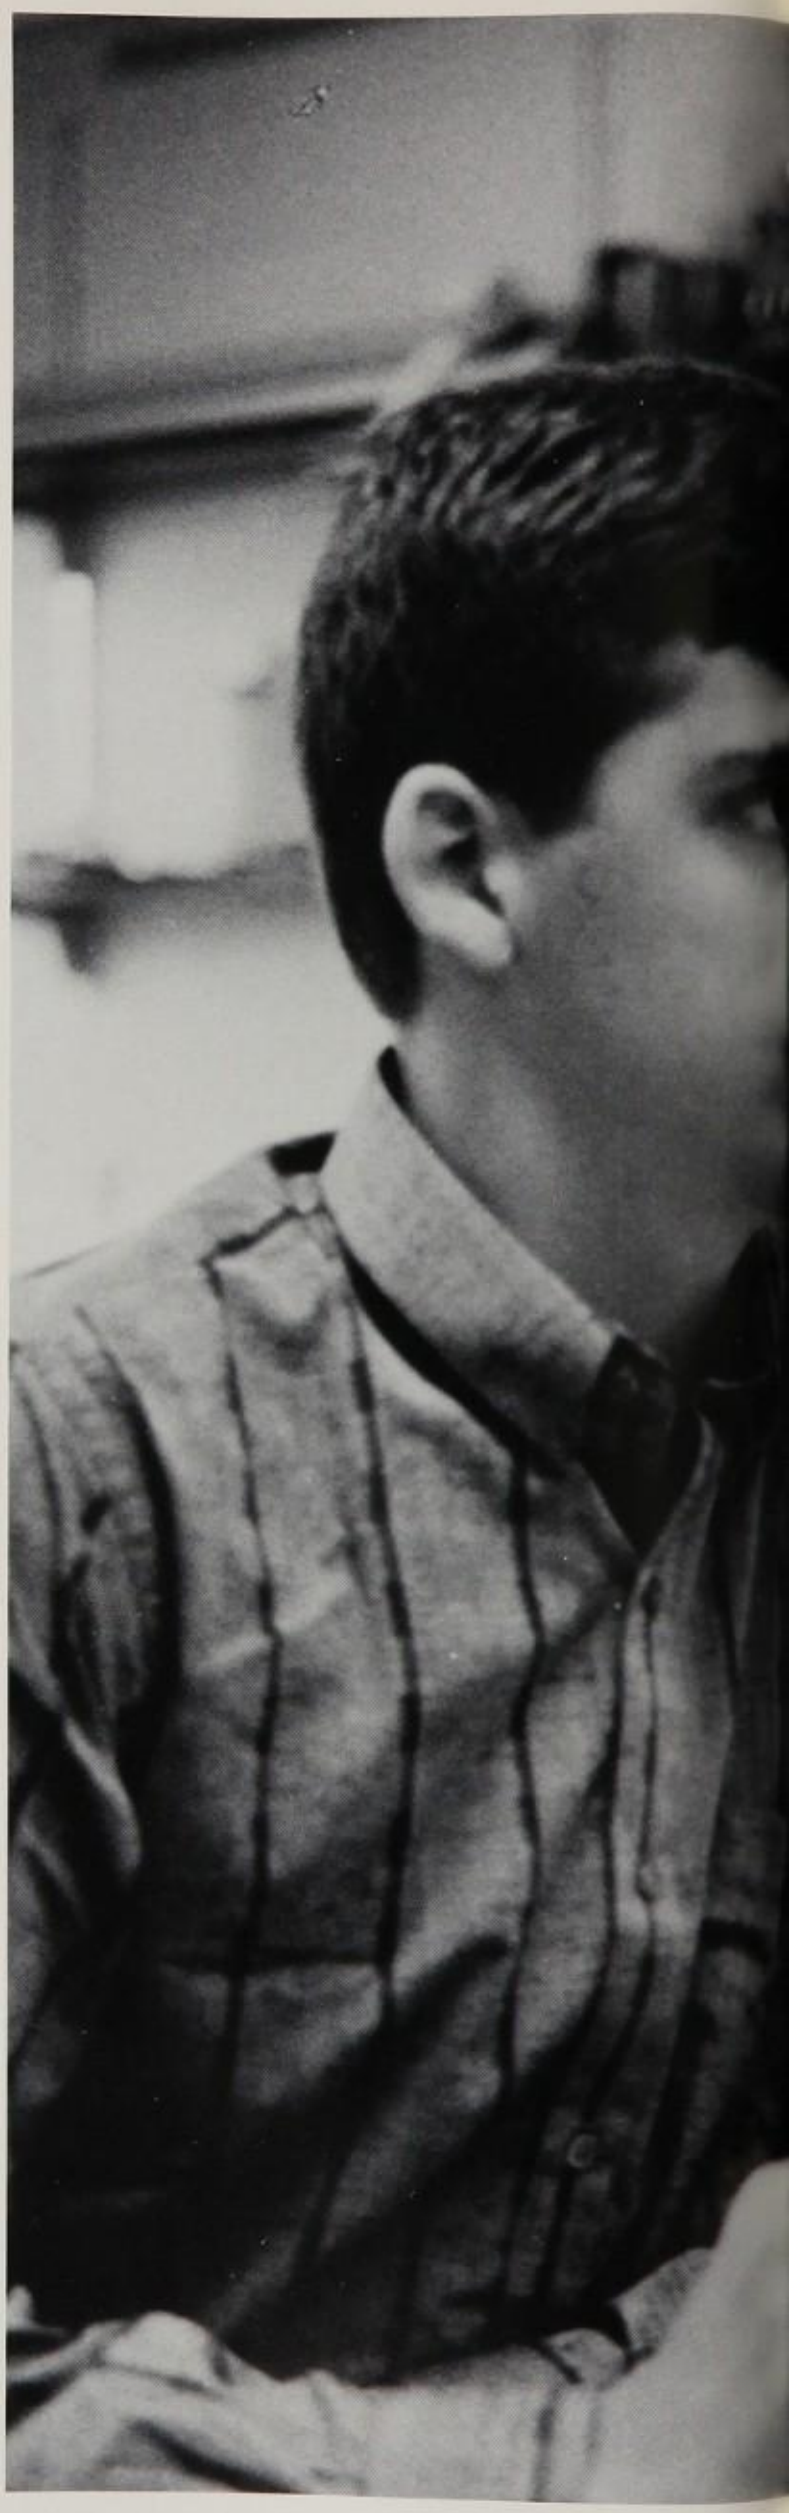
OBSERVATION & EXPERIMENTATION

Ever wanted to know what the real shape of the earth is? or how to disect a pig? or what lacy podium is used for? These questions and much more are answered in the four year science program at Harborfields. The science program starts in ninth grade with earth science. Then in tenith grade you study biology and eleventh grade you study chemistry. In twelvth grade you can take A.P. biology or physics classes or both. All the science courses consist of a class period and a lab which one has every other day. At a glance some may think that this subject is easy because all you have to do is memorize some easy lessons. This is not true. Science deals with the understanding of complex theories, memorizing hard definitions, and balancing equations. One chemistry student said,"Science isn't like other classes where you can just slide by. You have to apply yourself in order to do well." Even though Science is very hard it is also very important ,if you want to get a good job in the fundamental skills taught in the Harborfields Science program.

by Jesse Cohen, '89



Another group of victims of Mr. Miller latest chemistry test; this time they are juniors Katia Port, Joe Panettieri and Rob Lobosco.



"Hey! It's answer B, Frank". Seniors Dean Soteropoulos and Frank Tantillo take it all in during their AP physics course.

"Oh God, what should I say?"
Debbie Carroll

After the experiments, Miriam Fendel, junior, works on recording her data and lab results.

Another member of thr HF science department? No, just visiting this time.

Junior Chris Silveri is spotted among the equipment, preparing for his next series of experiments.

I took art first in ninth grade. It was a good class.

Chris catches us from a different angle this time. He works with fellow senior , John Zweibel, on, the latest assignment.

OPERATING ON THE CREATIVE EDGE

Art (art)n. -skilled human accomplishments in literature, music, painting, sculpture, drawing, photography, etc.

The art department offers two sections for students to study: studio art and photography. These courses allow students to pursue their interests and display their talents in the field of art.

Photography class is a real challenge to many students. Here is where they can exert their abilities and take the "ultimate" picture. Mr. Guterman and Mr. Schwen allow the students the opportunity to learn about picture taking and the processes of film development. Once students get the hang of it, it's easy as rewind, focus, and click!

No more than a door away is the ever-popular studio art rooms. They are constantly crammed with students creating masterpieces. Under the instruction of Mrs. Graber and Mrs. Ronco, students can indulge their interests in everything from ceremics to fashion design.

The Art department offers students guidance and expertise in the field of fine of fine arts.

KEEPING IN TUNE WITH IT ALL

"Are we really going outside for marching band practice today ?", in the rain!
"Yes, of course we are!!"

Due to the recurring bad weather this football season, this was a conversation that was most frequently heard from the Marching Band at Harborfields. While they were busy preparing for a climax performance at Giants Stadium, the Harborfields orchestra was practicing in room 115, under the eyes of Mrs. Rausch. Later in the day, strains of Hallelujah could be heard from that room, where Mr. Czina was working with the Choir. Overseeing all this activity, as well as leading the band, was Mr. Robert Domencetti, Chairman of the Music Department.

Less conspicuous to many students, are the classes that HF offers in specific areas of music; such as guitar, piano, and music theory. "It's hard," commented senior Brenda Clark about her music theory class- a class in which students learn the basics of writing music.

Every year, teachers in the music department help their students go further in their particular music field by encouraging them to participate in out-of-school activities such as All-County, LISF (Long Island String Festival) and for juniors and seniors, All State.

by Rob Rome, '88 & Ann Sochi, '88

Before their class begins, choir members pluck out the notes on the piano. Junior Electra Jacobs gives us a giggle as her camera shy friend shuns the camera.

Freshman Wayne Ahlsen is ready to go. With trumpet in hand, he waits for the rest of the band.

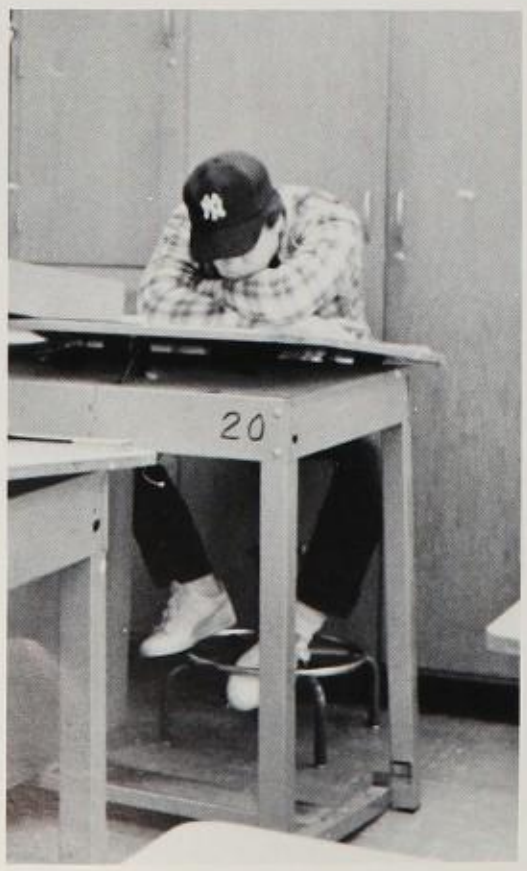
IN TRAINING

To prepare students for the constantly developing business world, Harborfields offers many courses for future Business leaders. Business is a large field with many opportunities, and Harborfields Business teachers want all students to have the same chance at making it in the b usiness world. There are several basic courses taught in the business wing: Accounting, Business law, Business Math, Speedwriting, Word Processing, Keyboarding and Introduction to Occupations. These electives not only assist the students for the business field, but also help for college courses.

When most students think of a business course, they imagine computers. Computers make up a large section of the business wing, but there are also courses such as Keyboarding (typing), Speedwriting (shorthand) and Business Math and Law.Getting involved in business electives has been a definite asset to Harborfields students..... It has even helped some students to choose their major in college or their career after college.

Business teacher, Mrs. Antretta, leads the class. Business is a small but strong field at HF.

Mrs. Antretta and business club members Nancy Hughes and Karen Schiliro discuss ideas for club activites.



"Hmph!" This mechanical drawing student takes a minute to ponder over a baffling problem in one of his plates.

WITH A DEFINITE PLAN IN MIND

Looking on with interest, hope (and crossed fingers), the students watched the movement of a "living" robot.

Mr. Slocum, Chairman of the Industrial Arts team, explains that new technology such as the robots are essential in our quickly changing society. "After all," Mr. Slocum explains, "the purpose of industrial arts is to help the students survive in our complicated world."

Industrial Arts is introducing new projects of its own this year. In electronics, students are building robots. In the drafting department, the new C.A.D. (Computers Aided Drafting) system will show students how the computer can aid them in using modern techiques.

Mr. Slocum, Mr. Indelicato, and Mr. Falbush are the teachers who conduct the classes, which deal with their respective skills. Through the use of creativity, innovation and problem solving, they are changing the look of Industial Arts in the high school.

Adam Lebrando, Matt Martenz and Jeff Amato wait their turn to test their rockets.

"An 80?! Oh no, this course was supposed to bring my grade up with easy nineties..." - the lament of this particular senior has often been heard before. Health can be a "fun" class compared to some of the heavier loads in other subjects, but make no mistake, there's still a fair share of work to be done. That includes reaction papers, textbook work and, of course, testing. The range of topics touches on Mental Health, Drugs, Sexuality, and Death.

This is the last year that seniors as a whole will be taking Health. Since two years ago, Harborfields students have been taking Health as freshmen. A result of this change has been the idea of offering Health oriented electives - family planning, for example to the students.

The fall of '86 brought us some notable changes in the physical education program. The "blanket exclusion" policy for Varsity team players was struck down and replaced by a modified exclusion program; among the changes was a required physical fitness test on which athletes must score at least an 80%.

The new attendance policy brought more groans and moans from the student body. Now eight absences in one semester = no credit. The points, however, taken off for each absence could be made up.

At the helm of the department is our new athletic director, Mr. John Kabat.

Great things are expected from us this year. We should be in the playoffs.

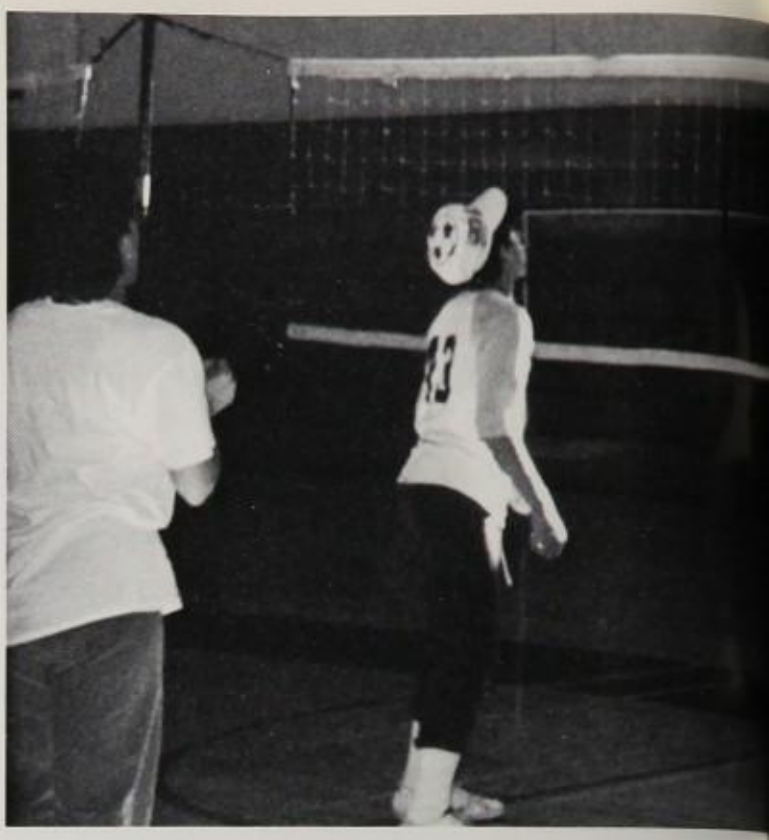
FOR THE FUN OF IT: INTRAMURALS

The Intramural program at Harborfields is a very popular one. Varied physical activities are offered to all members of the student body. Students with an interest in a sport can meet to have some intense competition and some good times. Examples of the sucessful intramural program include the intramural volleyball tournament, organized by Mr. Dave Mayerson, which this year fielded 140 participants. Mr. Yedziniak's W.B.A. is also a highlight of the intramural program. Teams participating in this basketball program go so far as to buy their own team shirts.

Other intramural activities include: "three-on-three" basketball in the spring; badminton in late fall; weight-training in the winter; indoor soccer and box lacrosse. Intramurals are attended by those seeking enjoyment, competition, a chance to exercise and/or a chance to prepare for an upcoming sports season.



Andrea Roemer, junior, brought her winning serve to volleyball in the intramurals this year. Here, she and senior Rachel Fenderson warm up for the basketball season with some extra afterschool play. Gym teacher Mr. Mayerson is on hand for some advice.

THE TREK TO TECH

It's about 7:45 a. m., and while most of the Harborfields student body is settling into their first period class, another group of students is piling into an awaiting bus. Later in the day, around 11:45, still another group of students depart Harborfields. A field trip? A day at the beach? No! These students are all participating in the Wilson Tech program.

Wilson Tech is for students interested in a vocational-technical education. Students enrolled in this program receive the academic part of their education at Harborfields and their vocational education at various other campuses. At these other campuses they may take courses in the fields of medical assisting, auto body repair, banking, commercial photography, carpentry and cosmetology, just to name a few.

The work the students do in the Tech program earns them three credits per year toward graduation. Tech also provides a direct, "hands-on", learning experience for those pursuing a vocational-technical field.

TOUGHING IT OUT... IN AP COURSES

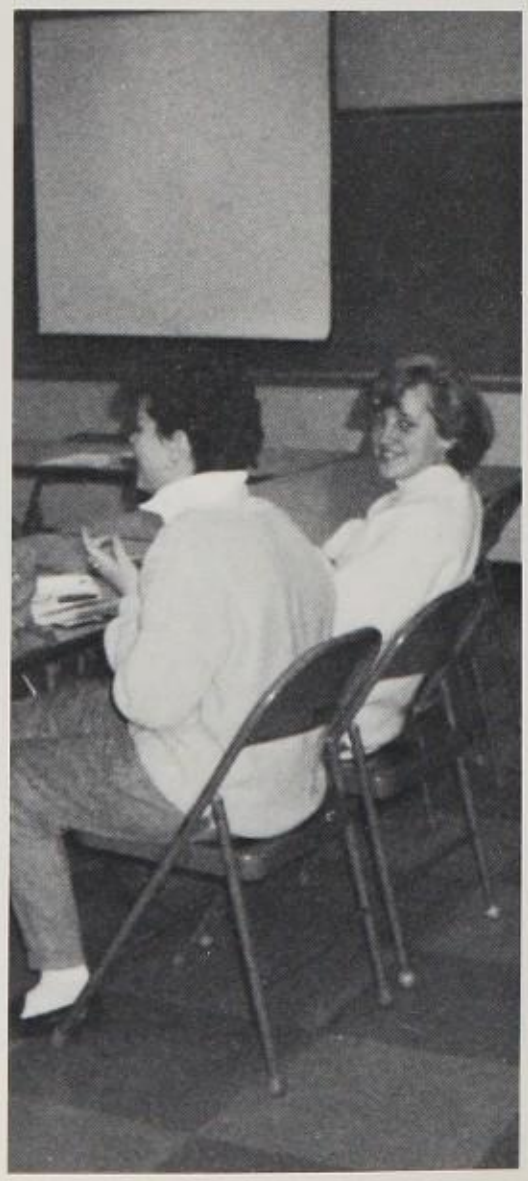
"Hey Matt! What's the room number for your AP math class? I want to take some yearbook pictures." "I don't know, it's the one immediately on the right when you go up the stairs - but you better come soon, cuz I won't be in that class much longer..."

Anyone who has taken - survived - an AP, or advanced placement, course can understand how senior Matt Bender was feeling. AP courses are advanced placement studies in a subject, with an exam at the end that is graded on a scale of one to five. They are tough to get through. These are the courses that have introduced juniors to DBQ'S (document based questions), seniors to intergration (???) and have caused more than a few all-nighters.

However, that the work of an AP class is hard, should be taken for granted; completion of these courses, after all, can be used for college credit. For example, someone who successfully completes Mr. Mugavin's AP math class and does well on the exam, can earn college credits, and may not have to take a math course in their freshman year at college.

Several other subjects have their own AP courses. English has an AP class for seniors, with "great emphasis on writing essays of freshman college caliber". There are AP Bio and Physics courses that are "theoretically of first year college level." Juniors can take an AP history course on American history. Euroean history is offered to senior AP students. Even students with a keen interest in foreign languages have the option to take an AP exam at the end of French 6 and Spanish 6.

"Taking AP courses has been a worthwhile experience. Although I haven't had the opportunity to really see for myself, I know that having this background will give me an edge once I'm in a college classroom." Senior Jennifer Fink.



Bring out the soda and popcorn! It's film time for seniors Sheila Egan and Jenny Dore.

Ugh! It's midterm time in Grobe's AP Physics class, but it's no sweat for seniors Jenny Dore and Tricia Endres "Really?!" "Yeah, it's true..." This week's test is over, so juniors Anne Dempsey, Mary Lynch and Vasant Marathe can relax in their 11 AP History class.

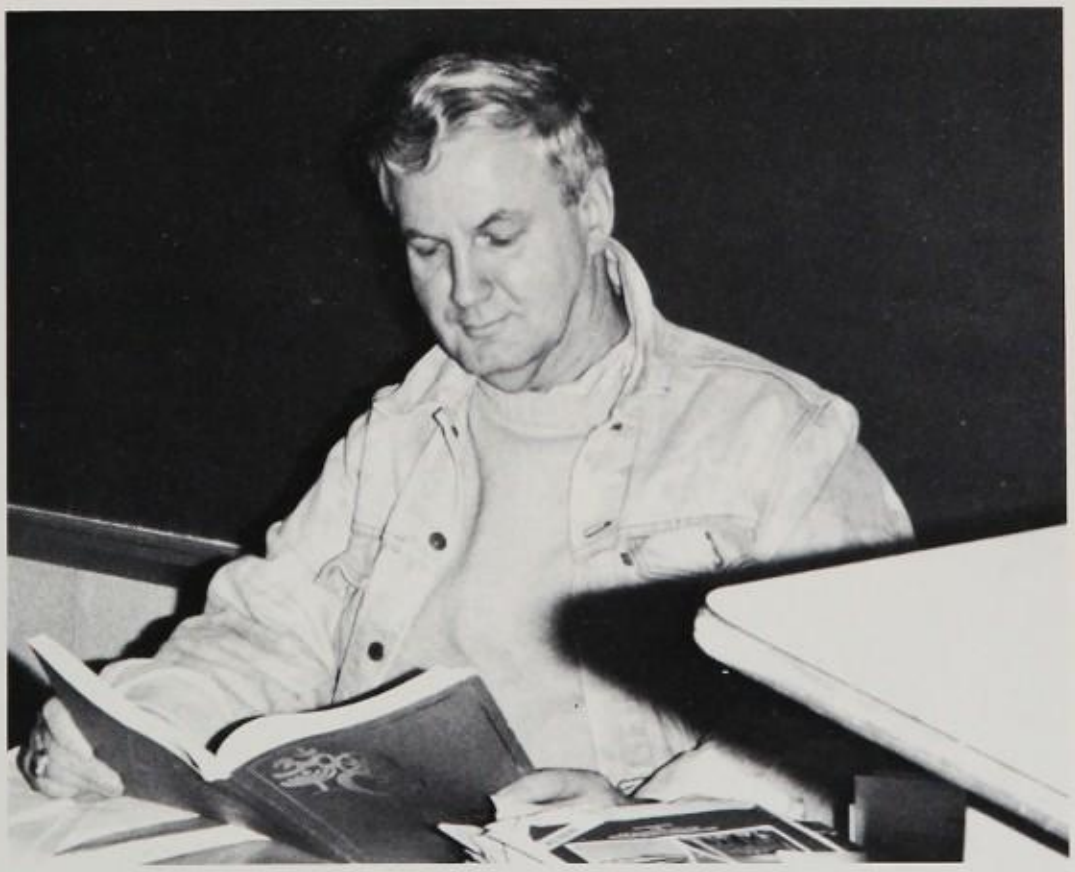
Deep concentration? Probably not, but these seniors in 12 AP History give it their best shot: Craig Stiller, Rick Rezhak and Andie Pukke.



Pop in denim! Dressed for success, Mr. "Pop" Thoelen gets some reading done after teaching his third period AP class.

READING INTO IT

The Reading Department has a lot more to offer than just courses in reading. Sure, they have courses at a remedial level, but it doesn't stop there. How about Speed Reading? Did you ever think you'd never finish that book for English or that chapter for history? Well, then here is the class for you. Try some rapid reading for a start, then a little skimming and scanning, and some study in the rate of flexibility to top it all off. After you have read seven hundred words a minute, think back. Did you really understand all you read?

Maybe you need to shape up your vocabulary. What better place to do it than Power Vocabulary. This will not only allow you to impress your teachers with words such as "trinitrotoluene" and "gonfalonier", but you may actually learn something. (Don't tell anyone, but there is a rumor going around that Power Vocabulary may help you on the SAT's and on college entrance exams, but shhhh, don't tell...)

After learning to read fast and understand what you read, you can than analyze, interpret and evaluate the text. What do you think a course like this would be called? Reading Strategies, of course. If, however, you are more interested in discussing what you have read, than the Great Books Discussion would be for you. Here you learn the ultimate meaning of the author's words.

Now you may begin to understand that the list of courses offered by the Reading Department goes on and on. As you may see, the Reading Department is not just for reading anymore.

FIELD TRIP!!!!!

The mention of these two words can do wonders in waking up a class. Ever since elementary school, when teachers would take us on visits to such standard places as the Museum of Natrual History or the Bronx Zoo, a field trip has become the traditional way to escape the routine of classes, a kind of release. Yet, to those who have begun to take a sincere interest in their studing or have found something that truely triggers their curiosity, field trips are more meaningful than simple, futile escapes. Perhaps they provide students with the time to exchange thoughts or experience something entirely new. In what ever specific way, the field trips are fulfilling their intended purpose - to be a learning experience.

Sometimes the class outing can take on a serious tone, such as Dr. Lemonedes' annual eleven honors visit to the C.W. Post library. During the class' research on it's term paper, Dr. Lemonedes takes them to Post to expose them to a college library system and to the resources that it offers. (And along the way, there's exposure to college food: overpriced and undercooked.)

In the fall, there was a trip to Boston, organized by history teachers Mr. Thoelen and Mr. Klein. Students took a guided tour to historical sites such as Lexington, Concord, Bunker Hill and Boston Commons.

The language department, as always, planned unusual trips for it's students. Spanish students went to see a performance given by Spanish entertainers and then dined at a Mexican restaurant for lunch. Seventy lucky French students were able to see the Van Gogh art exhibition at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City.

In Febuary, Mr. Domencetti arranged for piano students to attend a "master class" in piano. At this class, they could play for or simply listen to a professional pianist. They would then receive a critique and some advice.

Every year there are new field trips. They make for some fond memories and, while each has its serious purpose, a field trip allows for talk and laughter that can be missing in class.

A riverbank view of Boston reflects the serenity and natrual beauty of this area.

SECRET ORGANIZATIONS

Leaders of special coalitions meet with cabinet members. Plans and dates for crucial meetings are set. Clandestine excursions are taken.

What is this all about?

These are the Secret Organizations of Harborfields High School. Over 20 clubs, comprised of active students who participate in extra-curricular activities to develop their interests in various areas; foreign lanuages, student governments and administrations and academic subjects.

While all of thes individual societies have a serious purpose, the main element is merely to have fun. Members seek to expand their own horizons by sharpening chess skills or by sharpening their pencils for Mathletes. Whatever you choose to do, there is something at Harborfields for you. Perhaps you, too can become the President of perhaps the founding Father of your own club.

These are the Secret Organizations of this institution.

BUSINESS, AS USUAL

STUDENT COUNCIL

This organization is the bloodline between the faculty and the student population, at large, of Harborfields. Class officers from grades nine through twelve meet monthly with the council's excutive board to discuss up and coming events.

Students may become members by being one of the first fifteen to submit a petition of fifty signatures. Members are then responsible for informing their fellow classmates of the issues at hand. Spirit Week, Homecoming and a program for Drug Awareness were some of the major activities initiated by the Student Council this year.

Aside from the large amount of work and effort that is required to coordinate the actions of over fifty members, a lot of fun is also involved. This year's advisor, Ms Morando laughs with appreciation when the "responsible" members follow Parlimentary procedure... "out of order!".

PAC

In addition to the student council, there is another student's body of administration: The Principal's Advisory Council. The council is composed of four seniors, three juniors, three sophomores, and two freshmen. Together with Dr. McCloat, they discuss topics of various interests to the students. Student reactions and principal replies are exchanged, establishing a better mode of communication. Senior Slave Day, varsity sport exemption and the new attendance policy are some of the topics discussed. Everything is laid on the table, ready to be presented and investigated; and considering the size of Dr. McCloat's table, a lot is accomplished!

"LESSONS WELL LEARNED"

HISTORY CLUB: Marlene Froelich

The History Club of Harborfields High School, advised by Mr. Robert Klein, is an organization which gives its members an opportunity to become involved in history-oriented activities while enjoying themselves. The club consists of fifty members who are active in extra-curricular activities but are willing to devote themselves to yet another school organization. The club meets every other Wednesday of every month and meets to discuss approaching events.

For the Christmas season they participated in Newsday's "Adopt-A-Family" project, and sponsored their annual "Pictures with Santa Claus" as a club fund raiser. Members also competed in various writing contests dealing with subjects such as Martin Luther King Day and the Presidential Classroom. But the students also involve themselves in many field trips. One in October was to Boston; at presstime, the club was planning on another excursion to either Philadelphia or Washington D.C. in the spring.

If this sounds intriguing to you, maybe you're a potential "History Club" member. Find out for yourself and discover that history is more than a textbook subject.

"Numerous Moves"

CHESS CLUB:John Penrod

The Chess Club started off last year on a trial basis to see if, in fact, an interest in chess existed at Harborfields. I am happy to say that the club has more than surpassed my original expectations. The club now has close to twenty members. Our advisor, Mr. William Thoelen, deserves credit for advising it ever since it started in the winter of 1985.

This year my goal for the Club includes playing against other schools in the neighboring districts. We have a talented team of players who are ready to challenge others. Thursday is our regularly scheduled meeting day. Students try to increase their rank in the club, determined by the number of wins minus the number of losses. Although chess may be confusing at first, skill can be gained through experience... easily gained by becoming a one of the Club!

Chess Club officers are: President John Penrod; Vice-President Steven Barber; Secretary Peter Bakel; Sasi Doddapananni as Treasurer; and Vasant Marathe as Publicity Manager.

The Harborfields Mathletes team is a group of students that participate in a series of five county-wide competitions. The members of the team meet with Mr. Toby Kissam to prepare for each competition. Each meet is held at different high schools with students from different schools. Harborfields holds tests with students from John Glenn, Northport, and Commack North. Last year in the Harborfields placed fifth in the county.

"THE EVERY STUDENT LOUNGE"

Don't know what to do with all those free periods? The Student Union is the place to go in order to hang out and have some fun. Recreational activities include pool, ping pong and fooseball. Student run pool tounaments are a great means for friendly competition. The popularity of pool playing makes it necessary for students to sign up and use for only a half a period a day. The Student Union is also a money making venture. Mr. Emory Butts and working staff of about ten volunteers sell review books, and hooded seatshirts. These volunteers also maintain the ever popular soda machine. All profits generated by the Student Union go towards clubs and organizations such as the newspaper, yearbook and athletic teams. A $1000 scholarship is also provided through Student Union funds. The Harborfields Student Union, in existence since 1974, has been an integral part of the school community.

CHARACTER, SCHOLARSHIP, LEADERSHIP, and SERVICE: THE BEST OF HF.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY: John Maher

The Harborfields chapter of the National Honor Society, in it's twenty - seventh year of existence, successfully upholds all of the standards for which this organization stands: scholarship, leadership, character, and service. The Honor Society is composed of those juniors and seniors who best exemplify the required four attributes. However, it is more than just a list of names; it provides a great many services to the high school and the surrounding community.

Ninety - nine members strong, the chapter consists of the best Harborfields has to offer in academics and service. The chapter as a whole will use their excellence in those four areas to help both the school and community. In addition, each indivdual member is responsible for his or her own service project.

The Harborfields chapter of the National Honor Society is supervised by it's executive board: Jennifer Fink, President; Kenneth Shindler, Vice-President; Rachel Wifall, Secretary; Karen Higgins, Treasurer; and Junior Board member, Ann Sochi. Mr. John Shuttleworth serves as the advisor, but is in his last year due to his retirement at the end of this school year. His sixteen years of service have been invaluable: the Honor Societies of both the past and the present are extremely grateful. Thanks to the leadership of these people and their hard work, the Honor Society has become a very important academic and service organization here at Harborfields High School.

ZEPHYR

Zephyr, the school's literary magazine, is a composite of the student works at Harborfields. The literary pieces or works of art are submitted by the student or by the recommendation of the student's teacher. Works may be submitted anonymously. Then the Zephyr staff grades the work and chooses the best ones to be published. This year there was a cover contest as well as a writing contest.

The advisors are Dr. J Lemonedes and Mrs. Driscoll. The co-editors are seniors Rachel Wifall, Carol MacMillan, Jennifer Fink, Diane Schnittman, and Mary Campbell. There are also numerous artists, layout people, photographers, and writers who are an essential part of the success of Zephyr.

The Zephyr staff meets weekly. To be on the staff does not require one to be a modern-day Shakespeare. It is open to anyone who is willing to come to the meetings, bring new ideas, and ready to work.

S.A.D.D. (Students Against Driving Drunk): Loretta Masse

Students Against Driving Drunk was put into effect in Harborfields High School in 1984 and is presently under the supervision of Mr Botticelli. The purpose of S.A.D.D. is to help the public become more aware of the dangers of driving while intoxicated.

In order to demonstrate to the public the seriousness of D.W.I., a gauntlet was held last year. This year S.A.D.D. is supporting Peer Leadership, a course training persons to deal with their problems, whether socially or emotionally. Students Against Driving Drunk also presented various informative films dealing with D.W.I. during Drunk Driving Awareness Week. These and other activities supported by the Harborfields chapter of S.A.D.D. has tremendously helped both the student population and the community towards the prevention of unneccessary accidents and deaths.

A Thrilling Combination -

Every Step They Take

CHEERLEADING: Nancy Hughes

Cheerleading may be fun but it is also a lot of work and is incredibly time-consuming. Practice begins in the summer and ends with the basketball season. It adds up to a full seven months of rehearsal, twice a week after school, not to mention the football games followed by the basketball games. Only the true football fans appreciate what it's like to be cheering for a game in the pouring rain. We don't look forward to being drenched but we stick it out and cheer as loudly as possible.

However, being able to perform a cheer is not everything. Every girl is a pertinent part to each cheer and stunt. We provide each other with moral support, as well as the team that we are cheering on. But as the old phrase goes, "It's not quantity that counts, but quality."

DRILL TEAM: Lucia Mclory

Routines and ribbons, pompoms and trophies, the spring is when it all begins. Only thirty girls became members of the team, committing themselves to a long season. As opposed to the standard three month season, Drill Team performed all year long. Members attended summer practice and went through five days intensive training in Trenton. Once school started, practices varied from twice a week to every day including weekends. Under the direction of Mr. John Shuttleworth and choreographer Dawn DeAngelo, the Drill Team performed at football and basketball games and in the Long Island Kickline Association. With the help of tricaptains Melanie Bretner, Tammy Lefkon and Kristin Swedish the team was in top condition to defeat the competition, proving that with hard work, dedication and talent they can beat anyone.

CYCLING CLUB: David Wallens

This year a cycling club has been formed at Harborfields. Although one was attempted several years ago this one, with a dozen serious members, looks as though it will survive. At present the club, which has no advisor, is not an "offical" organization; however, Dr. McCloat has allowed the group to use a classroom for meetings. At meetings the members discuss the many aspects of cycling, from maintance to trip planning. The trips are the highlight of the club providing, of course, no one gets lost. INTERACT: David Wallens Rotary International is a world organization of businesses who contribute their time and services to their community. They help those who are in dire need of their assistance; Interact is a club on the student level which also specializes in helping people, from the young to the elderly.

Dr. McCloat sought the assistance of Mr. Emory Butts, who agreed that a service organization at the high school would be most beneficial for the population at large. East Northport Rotary Club agreed to sponsor the chapter. If you receive self-satisfaction from helping others, you may want to join. Interact is always looking for volunteers; the gratitude is immediate.

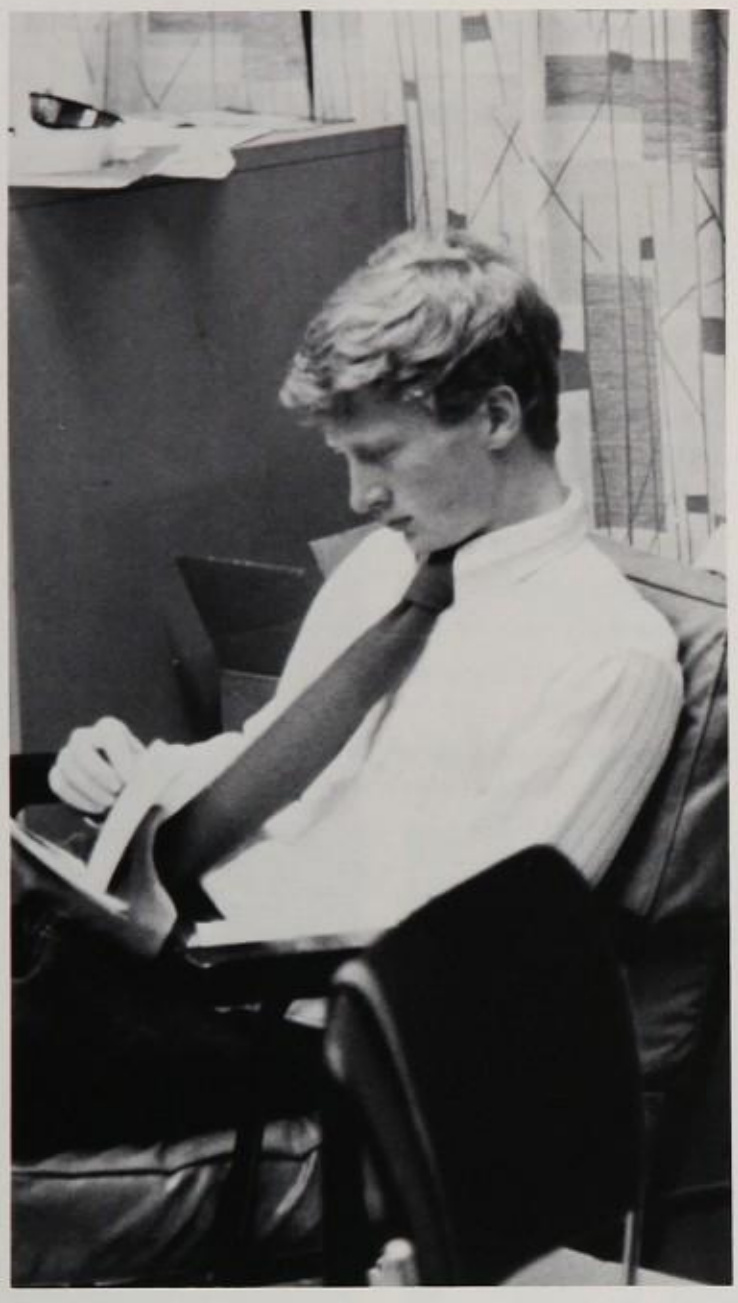
DEADLINE: JUNE "87"



Now that's a good picture. Jim Ryerson takes a look at the pictures which have just arrived from Carol Studios.

Putting out the yearbook is not as easy as most people think. This is my second year on the staff and I no longer take for granted all the ups and downs that one experiences before the final product is completed. This year Ms. Kathy Kuch, our advisor, and Trisha Enderes, our chief editor, are in charge of coordinating the yearbook. They can most often be heard exclaiming, "WE HAVE A DEADLINE DUE!".

Right now, I'm sure you are searching through the yearbook trying to find yourself in a picture or two, or perhaps a brief mention of you in an article; but did you ever stop to think what had to be done to achieve this? Lots of hard work! Specifically: rolls and rolls and more rolls of pictures were taken; stories were written and rewritten; pages laid-out and rearranged; advertisements and yearbooks sold. All of this is very time consuming and must be done early in the school year, even before twelfth graders have a chance to develop senioritise.

The work is rewarding; to see one's efforts in print is a thrill. All the staff hope you enjoy this year's publication.

The Business Club has developed rapidly since its founding in the fall of 1985. The club has attracted many students who are interested in the world of big business; consequently, the club has become an offical chapter of the Future Business Leaders of America (F.B.L.A.).

Two dedicated teachers from the Business Department, Mrs. Delis and Mrs. Antretta, work with the future tycoons to enhance their understanding of the business world. The Business Club offers scholarships in Business to deserving students in the club. The organization also sponsers the appearance of numerous guest speakers who help to broaden the horizons of the future entrepreneurs. The accomplishments were amazing throughout the year and the experiences will help to keep the business tradition strong.

DATELINE: HARBORFIELDS

The school newspaper is called the Harbinger and every so often it brings tidings on what's happening at Harborfields. The newspaper provides the students with both information and entertainment. The issues are churned out bi-monthly.

The newspaper staff is composed of students in grades nine through twelve. A variety of talents are needed to put the paper together; reporters, photographers and artists. However, no experience is needed to join. Members provide articles that are both humorous and serious. Still others voice their opinions through editorials.

Even with a dedicated staff of students, the editors credit much of their sucess to Mrs. Barbara Springer, the advisor. "Many thanks and we hope she will continue to support the Harbinger".

LIGHTS, CAMERA,

The Haborfields Theater Company was founded in order to promote the learning and enjoyment of the theater. Membership is open to all interested students. All one needs to do to become a member is attend the meetings regularly or pitch in on a show. Parts in the Company's two or three productions are determined through rigorous auditions, but everyone is free to try out. Each show is also aided by the stage and set crews. Their responsibilities include building sets, change scenes, work lights, sell tickets, manage publicity, and publish the playbill. The theater group is always looking for people who work well with a hammer as well as with a line!

For 1986-'87, the company was kept busy. In October the opening of the children's play "Pete's Feat" proved to be a sucess, with it's host of pirates, crocodiles, and Lost Kids. Visiting audiences from Thomas J. Lahey school showed approval with excited thunder of applause.

In December, there was a complete change of pace with Agatha Christie's "Mousetrap". Eight talented actors graced the stage and sent the audience through twists and turns as a psychotic murderer was on the loose.

The main event of the year was the colorful production of "The Wizard of Oz". Big, bright and bouncy, it was a rip-roaring production which enchanted the audience. It was a fitting finale to a big year.

SPHERES OF INFLUENCE

SPANISH CLUB

The Spanish Club, with Mrs. Khatir as advisor, participated in many activities throughout the 1986-87 school year. The club also contributed to the language clubs' annual holiday party by making a "Pinata" to be broken during the festivities. During the year, the students watched Spanish speaking films and dined at a Spanish restaurant. The club members look foward to participating in the foreign language volleyball tournament held at the end of the year. This year the Spanish Club also sponsered a "Thanksgiving Clothing Drive" for needy Hispanics on Long Island.

GERMAN CLUB

The Harborfields German Club has been especially active this year. The year began with a successful Oktoberfest family dinner. There was also a traditional folk dancing and musical performance at Sachem High School by the German/ Austrian performance troop, The Stratton Mountain Boys. Afterwards, club members had dinner at Tutzen's of Port Jefferson.

Club officers worked with advisor Frau Scheef for another 3 week exchange program with students from Ulm, Germany. This year the club welcomed Achim Kretschmer as a full-year student.

The dedicated officers this year were: Rachel Wifall (Pres.), Matt Slear (Vice-Pres.), Tina Smith (Secretary), Karin Herbst (treasurer) and Jennifer Fink (publicity). They would like to wish this year's senior and future graduates luck in the future- "Vill Gluck."

THE FRENCH CLUB

The French club, under the leadership of Mrs. Khatir, was involved in various activities this year, both entertaining and cultural. Throughout the school's year, the members saw French films which enhanced their understanding of Parisian culture. At each meeting, members would be listening to music of popular French singers or groups from the past and the present. Many club members, as well as those of the National French Honor Society, tutored students. The club also participated in the annual foreign language club holiday party, along with a dinner at a French restaurant.

FOLLOW THE LEADER

The Leaders program is an organization made up of Harborfields athletes who donate their time to the physical education department. The leaders do various types of service for members of the physical education staff, such as, answering phones, running errands, making posters and officating pysical education classes. A leader is required to do at least three periods of service a week.

In additon to the required service, the leaders are also involved in other projects. Girls' Leaders spearheaded a Thanksgiving food drive to collect goods for needy families in the community. They also sponser fund raisers throughout the year to support club activities. Activities undertaken this year include balloon sales at Christmas and a spring time car wash.

Members of Boys' and Girls' Leaders would like to thank advisors, Mr. Mayer and Ms Kuch, who keep Leaders and active and influential part of the P.E. Department.

ATHLETIC COUNCIL

The Athletic Council, under the leadership of Dr. Wilcox and President Senior John Donovan, is made up of several students from each grade level and various athletic clubs. Athletic Council is probably best known for its efforts in coordinating Harborfields annual Powder Puff competition. (Money raised through Powder Puff is used to help defray the cost of summer sports camp Harborfields athletes attend.)However, this year, the Council also published a newsletter for each sport season, covering both varsity and junior varsity teams. The Council also serves as a students advisory board.

FIELD OPERATIONS

TIME: 2;45 P.M.
PLACE: HARBORFIELDS GYMNASIUM
TASK: TO BE ALL YOU CAN BE

Each day brave souls known as Harborfields athletes come face to face with the task mentioned above. Armed with the best running shoes or tennis rackets, the athletes set out to fulfill this operation to the best of their ability. They endure the elements of rain, cold and smelly locker rooms and gyms to prove themselves in the world of high school sports. The strategy used by most teams at Harborfields has been that of teamwork mixed with confidence. So far this method has proved to be effective. Many teams have made it to the league and county championships. Many individuals have gained All-League, All-County, All- Long Island and All-Conference Honors. Accomplishments such as these have made the athletic teams of Harborfields highly recognized on the high school level. Proving themselves worthy of the task, we are then allowed to say: MISSION ACCOMPLISHED.

WINNING WAYS

The Harborfields 1986 football season proved to be a exciting and successful one. The team posted a league record of six wins and one loss. This season was the first since 1973 that the Tornados owned the league Championship outright. The Tornados kicked off the season opener by defeating arch rival John Glenn by the score of 26 to 12 Harborfields was handling the opposition and were stunned by the upset loss to Anityville on homecoming weekend.The Tornados went on to win all there remaining games only to lose to Wyndanch in the final 14-seconds of the playoff game.

Aside from an outstanding team performance,there were many individual highlights as well. Willie Thomas rushed for 1524 yards,the most in Suffolk county. Thomas also received All-Long Island and All-County Honors. All-County Honors also went to, Sean Frazier and Anthony Mondrone. All-League honors were bestowed on Mike Derisi, Mike Lombradozzi, Kevin Kustka, Eric Williams. Honorable mention went to Neal Ames, Scott Neal and Rob Clinard

AIMING HIGH

The 1986 J.V. Boys Soccer Team ended it's year with a record of seven wins, seven losses and one tie. The team was coached by Mr. Ed Yedziniak. The Tornadoes played tough in all their games but the thriller was the 1-0 victory over John Glenn. The team started slow because of injuries and because their opponents in the early part of the season were much bigger; however, the team turned it on once league play started. They finished the season on a four game win streak. The team was sparked by the sensational play turned in by Fran Curry, Ed Considine, and Patrick Kinney. Chris Auld was excellent in goal. Leadership on the field was provided by co-captaian Fran Curry and Ken Walters. Brett Elias

It seems Varsity Football usually receives most of the coverage but this year the Junior Varsity Team deserves notice. Under the leadership of Coaches Massaro and Sullivan the team started the season with some key wins. Captains Chris Porzio, Billy Daye and Mike Pavolich carried the team to a 22-6 victory over arch rival Glenn in the season opener. That win was followed by a second as Commack South fell to the Tornadoes. The remainder of the season, however, was not up to the Tornado's high standards. They finished with a record of two wins and four losses. Injuries can hamper any team and, unfortunately, the Tornadoes were no exception. Quarterback Rich Stack sustained a leg injury and was replaced in the lineup by Billy Daye. Other outstanding contibutions were made by sophomores Chris Byrd and Roger Labadie and freshmen P.J. Horseman, Jim Creamer and Glen Fazio. David Wallens

Bouncing Right

The Varsity Boys Soccer Team started off the season with a different attitude than most teams. This was to be the "recovery" or "rebuilding"year. After the first few scrimmages were played and we had won, we convinced ourselves we could succeed in the 1986 season. We went from a rebuilding team to a playoff team in just one season. Coach Pay Marra's team reached the playoffs by posting a regular season record of seven wins, two losses and one tie. The team was led by senior goalie John Donavan. He had plenty of help from all-county player Joey Berra and All-League players. Jim Woodcock, Craig Lange, Chris Johnston and Dan Hyde.

UP AND COMING

The Junior Varsity Field Hockey Team has had a successful season. The team's final record was five wins, six losses and two ties. The players learned about team work and the game of hockey from Coach Wilcox and captains Jennifer Huego and Paula Maher. Main scorer was freshman Michelle Storz. Also helping with scoring were sophomores Jennifer Huego, Paula Maher, Jessica Sullivan and freshmen Amy Gelken and Jennifer Marshall. Strong defensive players included Sophie Cavajal, Lisa Foley, Nancy Golden,Michelle Holmes, Madeline Pooler, Noel Wahreit, Karen Shkinder and goalie Amy Gross. Many new players joined the team this year and constant improvement was evident throughout the season. The team always played well together, enjoyed games as well as practices, and hung tough throughout the running workouts preceeding practices. The team was filled with talented players, some who displayed Varsity potential. The Girls Junior Varsity Soccer team, coached by Kathy Kuch, had a short but exciting season.The season began the last week of August but ended abruptly on October 16 due to lack of opponents. The Tornadoes finished with a record of four wins and six losses. They placed second in the Smithtown Tournement. Team captains Laura Bookbinder, Annie Domencetti and Lori Daniels helped motivate the team before each game. Jill Nunes was outstanding in goal while Marian Lauda provided the scoring power. This marks the fourth year the girls soccer team has won the League IV championships. The team won the county "B" championship after defeating Shoreham Wading River in double overtime with a score of 4-2. The team had several All-County and All-League selections including Jill Blackman and Tracy Hackeling (All-County selections), and Dana Bookbinder, Lauren Gallagher, Karen Roberts, Andrea Roemer, and Christine Suchon as All-League selections.

It was the fourth consecutive year they entered into the playoffs since the team began seven years ago. The girls lost in the Long Island Regional Championship game to the Nassau team, South Side, by a score of 2-0. Coach John O'Hara said,"The girls have come a long way and I'm looking for another successful season next year."

ACES AND GRACES

The Girls Varsity Tennis Team was in the midst of it's rebuilding year. The team, coached by Mr. Dave Mayerson, finished the season with four wins and seven losses. They placed fifth in the league. The Tornadoes had the distinction of being the only team in the Conference to have all it's players qualify for the Conference Playoffs.
Diana Croke

The girls gymnastics team, led by captain Jennifer Campbell, had a very rewarding season. Although their record did not enable them to place in the league, four members of the team qualified for thr Conference Championships at Port Jefferson. STICKS AND GROANS

Members of the Varsity Field Hockey Team showed excellent potential for the future. Although they finished the season with a record of one win, fifteen losses and one tie, the spirit and teamwork never failed. Earning All-League Honors this year were juniors Lisa Fusaro, sweeper and Allison Hilsky, inner. Ann Sochi showed outstanding defensive skills as goalie. Scoring for the Tornadoes this season were Allison Hilsky, Betsey Myers, Jenny Sampson and Elizabeth Sullivan. The team played in a difficult league this year and found it a challenge to compete with more skilled and experienced players but continued to train for a better season next year. Thanks to the efforts of Coach Waters and Captains Ann Sochi, Karen Solimando and Kirsten Werner the team had a season full of fun and learning. Unfortunately, Coach Waters will not be returning next season; however, because this was the team's rebuilding year, they are sure of a much more successful season next year. Good luck to the team and Coach Waters.

The Harborfields Girls Varsity Basketball Team ended their season with an impressive record of sixteen wins and three losses. With a League V record of eleven and one, they share the League V title with Wyandanch. The team is hopeful for a Division B title and confident of doing well in the State tournament.

While Rachel Fenderson was high scorer for the Tornadoes, the team was well balanced and used a combination of hussling defense, passing, shooting and a desire to come out on top, to defeat their opponents. Coach Bill Hennessy feels he has coached a superb and talented team this year.

RISING STARS

The 1987 basketball season promises to be a very exciting one for the Junior Varsity Basketball Team. A glance at the J.V. roster shows a team of young talent. Roland Alburg and Heath Mitchell lead the squad with exceptional shooting talent. Ed Considine is expected to pound the boards with his excellent rebounding skills. Tri-captains Billey Daye, Brian Simpkins and Ed Considine motivate the team to work together as a unit. Coach Vince Bonasia feels the Tornadoes have a lot of talent which will enrich the varsity program in the years to come.

Dana Bookbinder

The Freshmen hoopsters, led by high scorer and top board crasher Geaorge Tention, turned in one of the most exciting basketball seasons to date. Although they had more losses than wins, five of their games were lost by five points or less. Coach Bill Eliot feels his talented players will add depth to the Junior Varsity squad next year.

LOFTY GOALS

With the addition of a new coaching staff, the Harborfields basketball program is in the process of rebuilding. New to the team this year is Coach Tom Gargiulo. The coach expects five qualities from his team: pride, discipline, dedication, endurance and respect for each other. Mr Gariulo hopes that his team will express these qualities in everything they do, both on and off the court.

The Tornadoes are led by tri-captains Derrick Robinson, Willie Thomas and Jon Donovan. The team believes there is no one "hot shot". They feel they are most productive when they play as a unit. The team does not have great size but hope with hard work, discipline and quickness, they can make up for their size factor. By possessing these qualities, they hope to reach their ultimate goal: "the playoffs".

STRAIGHT DOWN

The 1986-87 season was a character building year for the Boys Varsity Bowling Team. Although the team won only a few games, Coach Ed Hartling stated the boys worked hard to improve their skills and always maintained a positive attitude.

The highlight of the season occurred when the doubles team of Travis Reynolds and Andy Winges placed fourth in the Suffolk County Doubles Tournament, missing second place by only six pins.

The Tornadoes were led in scoring by juniors Travis Reynolds and Andy Winges. Seniors David Sperber, John Tilden, Eric Mayer, Jim Beckman and Chris Stratton had fine seasons and were very helpful to younger team members. Sophomores Dennis Gallagher, Tim Teiter, Matt Morrell and freshman Paul Wang contributed greatly to the team and look foward to improving the team's standings in the league next year.

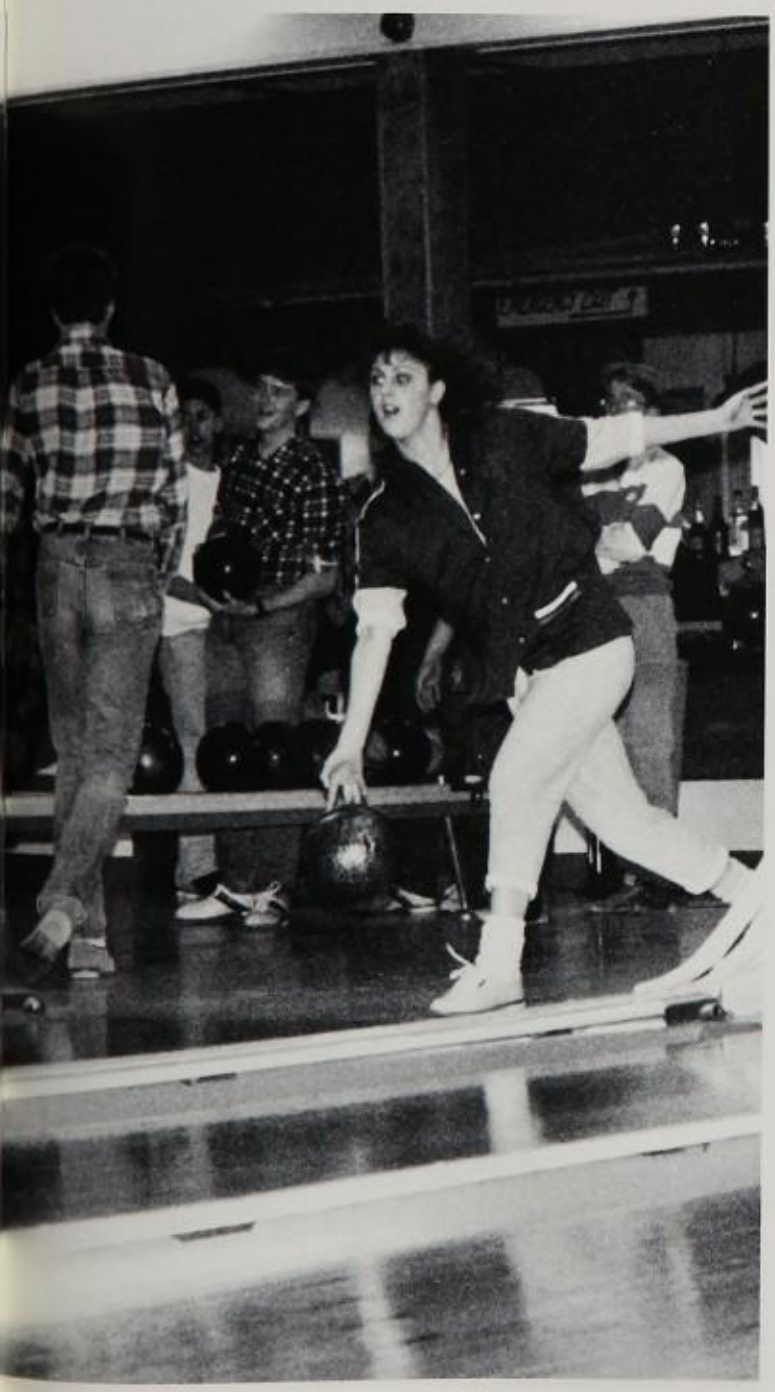
THE MIDDLE

The Harborfields Lady Keglers are in the second year of rebuilding a team wiped out by graduation two seasons ago. The team, mostly tenth graders, have shown great improvement during the past season. Last years winless team broke in to the win column early in the season by beating a strong Lindenhurst team on their own alleys.

Led by senior "lead-off" bowler Karin Herbst (127 ave) and followed by juniors Chrissi Cancemi and Tonya Harewood, the team was completed by sophomores Cathy Smith, Dee Azzinaro, Clare Fetherston and newcomers Sunny Park and Alicia Kang. The girls showed their determination throughout the year as they took on the powerhouses of League I including Northport, Sachem, Walt Whitman, Centereach, Lindenhurst, East Islip and Islip.

Next year the Tornadoes look for continued improvement and more victories over their stronger opponents.



"But, Mr. Mugavin, I am bending my knees and getting down low!" Chrissi Cancemi rolls along.

MAT WORK

The Harborfields Wrestling Team hopes to continue its excellent tradition this year, despite the loss of several outstanding seniors.

This years team is very young but Coach John Szokoli is proud of their hard work and enthusiasm. With one of the counties toughest schedules and with this work ethic, the team and its individual stand-outs should improve as the season progresses.

While team balanced is stressed on the wrestling team, several individuals have the potential to do well on a League and County Tournament level. They include Captain Mike Friedman, Dave Verelli, Brad Henrickson, Robert Lobosco, Derrick Williams, Jeff Shade and Gus Schuh.

Some of the highlights of the season include a sixth place finish in the Huntington Tournament, a fifth place finish in the Sachem Tournament and a second place finish in the Miller Place Tournament.

ROAD RUNNERS

Winter Track is a difficult sport; not because of the workouts, but due to the brisk cold weather. Running outside in snowy, freezing weather takes endurance and this is the quality winter track runners possess. Fortunately, meets are held in doors, usually at Farmingdale Community College.

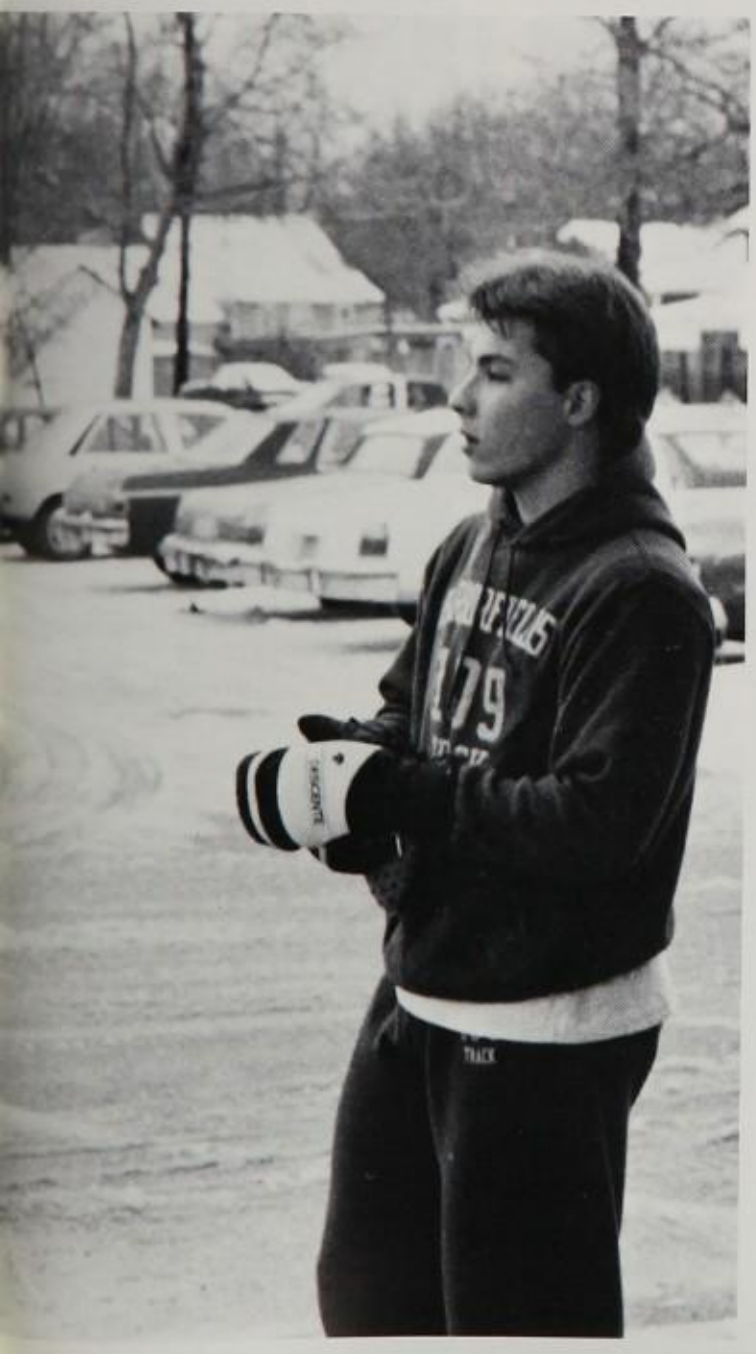
There were many highlights during the 1987 winter season. Lisa Fusaro placed first in the conference meet for shotput. Jenny Campbell placed third in the 300 meters, Suzanne Kennedy placed third in the 3000 meters and Nancy Hughes placed fourth in the 600 meters. The team qualified in the Dartmouth Relays and placed fourth in the two mile relay with a team consisting of Jenny Campbell, Nancy Hughes, Tina Smith and Suzanne Kennedy. Jenny Campbell also placed fifth in the 400 with a time of 60.1.

It has been a successful winter season thanks to the coaching and friendship of coach, Mr. Jim Zietler.

Nancy Hughes

Quality, not quanity! That is an apt descripition of the Harborfields Boys Winter Track team for 1987. With three ninth graders and three tenth graders, the team entered the season with much inexperience. Hard work and dedication, however, paid off in progress on the clock as each runner showed steady improvement as the season progressed.

The Tornadoes were able to capture 5th place in the League Championship meet. This feat that was accomplished with only twelve team members. In addition, the team also supplied a League, Conference and County Champion, Pat Smith. Pat also qualified for the New York State Championships. All-in-all, it was an eventful and satisfying season for Harborfields Boys Winter Track.



Coach Zeitler and Luis Barcenilla discuss some training strategy.

Winter Track, it's a tough job but someone has to do it, so say Coaches Ziebarth and Zeitler.

COMMUNITY ADVERTISING

The Harborfields community is a diverse one. The community branches from the beaches of Centerport to the stores on Greenlawn with Broadway extending in to some parts of Huntington. With this landscape there are many added features.

In winter and in summer the community holds many varied activities such as: sledding at the golf course in Centerport, skating on Centerport's Mill Pond, shopping in Huntington Manor, catching rays at surfside at Centerport, Huntington or Fleet's Cove Beach; or attending the Pickle Festival or the Firemen's Fair in Greenlawn.

This town is a working community and many Harborfields students have after school jobs. They work in supermarkets, stationary stores, offices and gas stations. Their parents maybe communters who travel to New York every morning and return to the Greenlawn train station every evening.

The 1987 Harborfields yearbook staff would like to thank our community for all the support it has given this years yearbook.

To the Class of 1987

Together we have climbed a mountain, a mountain of time. For the last four years we have shared successes and failures, ups and downs, laughter and tears. Now our roads part. After having built four Homecoming floats together, worked through four powder puffs and done so much more, the time has come for each of us to leave our Alma Mater, Harborfields High School, and start a phase of our lives.

In your case it will be like being born all over again. Nothing will ever again be the same. Thank you for giving me the opportunity of sharing your high school lives with you. I have many happy memories to carry with me and I hope you have also. Ten years from now we may meet again and relive these times together.

Now, as we say goodbye, I wish you all the happiness, love, joy and success in the world. You will live in my heart forever.

With much love to you all,

John Shuttleworth

The opening days of school was not an easy time for the Harborlight yearbook staff. While at many schools, and previously at Harborfields, work had already been commenced during the summer months, the Harborlight had not yet received a senior advisor. Thus, the development of the book's general theme came from a small handful of students who awaited a supervisor and to begin the actual work on the book. In mid-September, the yearbook's current advisor, Miss Kathy Kuch, agreed to take on the responsibility, or more realistically, an endeavor involving publications and productions - an area in which she had never had previous experience. As a result, the months up until November moved slowly for the yearbook's staff.

With only two editors remaining on the staff from previous years, a general consensus was made to boost the number of staffers by holding an informational meeting open to all Harborfields students in late September. Nearly 100 hundred people came to the meeting held during one 5th period. However, this number dwindled each week, and ultimately became a staff of ten editors (listed below by section) and fifteen or so other students who helped in various ways: doing layouts, writing copy, typing (both on and off the computer), taking photographs, and doing countless other odds and ends for regularly scheduled deadlines.

Laura Carillo - Co-editor: People
Scott Muscatello - Co-editor: Student Life

People co-editors Laura Carillo and Kirstin Werner leave the yearbook office after two hours of steady watch over blue pica boxes.

As the staff decreased to a small number of dedicated students, a clear theme of "CONFIDENTIAL" was chosen as "the thread that would link all the sections together". The students were to be the agents; their activities - covert; their sports endeavors - field operations. In a similar manner, each individual section's editor developed a more specific "link" or theme that would apply most adequately to his pages.

Once the generalities of the book were decided upon, the specifics of producing a professional publication came into play. The cover, as designed and executed by Tricia Endres and Karen Higgins, was the first part of the book submitted to Hunter publishing Company. Hunter green was chosen as the background color both to encompass the colors of the school and also to provide a contrast to the cream color of the manilla folder. The "Harborfields High School '87" and spy figure were submitted by Joel Rodgers as artwork ready to be photographed. Typeface is Venture Script and the paper used is 80 Enamel with a gloss coating. 100 Hunter Luster was used in the color section.

To bring consistency to the book, Joel completed a representative spy figure to be used on each section's division page and throughout its subsequent pages. The ready to be photographed artwork on the front endsheet is also by Joel Rodgers and encloses the Table of Contents. The story which streches from the front endsheet to the back, and is then repeated was written by Ann Sochi. It includes the names of fifty or so seniors within the context of a spy story, exemplifying the book's general theme. Here, the paper chosen is 80 Endsheet Stock in Sandstone with copy in 10 pt. bold caps and lower case in PMS Green 149.

The next decisions to be made involved the typeface to be used for bodycopy, captions and headlines. All bodycopy is in 10 pt. Times Roman and fully justified with captions in 8 pt. bold. Headlines on the opening, closing, division, and Colophon pages are in 24, 36 and 48 pt. Venture Script; occasionally incorporating a higher point size when chosen. All other headlines are in Times Roman and similarly varying point sizes.

Once the specifics of the book directly involved with Hunter Publishing Company were resolved, a "ladder" of the book was formally decided upon by Tricia and Karen. Each assistant editor was then assigned the number and placement of the pages for which he would be responsible to complete. Once again, the senior picture, which is in color, was chosen to be placed in the yearbook as a tip-in between pages 48 and 49. The rest of the color to be found in the book is located in the Student Life section which begins on page 80. To enhance both the color and black and white pages, a 1 pt. black ruleline frame is found on all the Student Life pages. Only dominants which "bleed" off the page disobey the border.

To add character to this year's book, an addition of "quote boxes" has been made. Within these 2 pt. black rulelined rectangles, is a student's picture and a quote of his or her's concerning the general focus of the spread on which it is located.

This year also brought the computer age to the yearbook. A Compac Personal Computer was used to write and edit stories, captions and headlines. All page lay-outs and ruleline graphics were done on the computer. This insured near perfect pages. Rather than sending large bulky boxes to the printer, now just the disc, photographs and final layout sheets are sent. Copy sheets have all but been eliminated.

Each section has its own column format and are as follows: People, modules with five columns across two pages; Student Life, nine columns per spread; Academics, seven across two; Clubs & Organizations, five columns per page; Ads & Community, 2 columns per page.

The first yearbook sales began late in the year; only beginning in October. All yearbooks purchased in advance were reduced by $10 (the regular price being $40). 70 books were ordered early and 420 were ordered for later sales in June once the books have arrived.

Our yearbook of 224 pages was printed by Hunter Publishing Company, of which Dan Gleason is our representative. All our photographic supplies, developing and printing, and professional photography (Junior and Senior portraits) are supplied and taken by Carol Studios of Lynbrook.

Following are messages from this year's editorial staff, which presents the 1987 Harborlight to the student body and staff of Harborfields High School.

Laura Carillo, Trish Endres and Kirstin Werner enter a story into the computer for the last deadline of the year in March.

This is my first experience in coordinating a yearbook. It has been a year which has been anything but dull. The year has been filled with deadlines, frustrations, frazzled nerves and moments of panic; but it has also been a time of amazement, learning, satisfaction and accomplishment.

What has amazed me the most is that a handful of youngsters between the ages of fifteen and eighteen can turn out a book of over two hundred pages. They develop a theme, write the stories, take photographs, design the pages and do all the art work. About the only thing they are not responsible for is running the printing presses. This is no easy undertaking considering they attend classes, do homework and almost all are involved in other school activites.

Many people have contributed in various ways to making this book a success, but none more so than our chief editor Tricia Endres. Without her expertise, dedication and patience, I'm not sure there would have been a yearbook. When I consented to be the advisor, I did not know the first thing about putting a yearbook together. Tricia not only coordinated the book, she trained all the editors and the advisor! When deadlines drew near and panic set in, Tricia would say "Don't worry Miss Kuch, we'll get it done.". And she did! So Trish, a very special thank you for your hard work, spirit, dedication and for "teaching an old dog new tricks". We could not have done this without you.

Other members of our crack staff who made this all possible and deserve a pat on the back include: editors Kirstin Werner; Laura Carillo; Scott Muscatello; Angela Cheng; Ann Sochi, Queen of Lay-outs, Liz O'Driscoll, Treasurer; Joel Rodgers, resident artist; photographers Jim (Nikon) Ryerson, David Wallens, and Paul Miller. Thank you.

Ms. Kathy Kuch
YEARBOOK ADVISOR

Other notes of thanks got to:

Dr. R. McCloat: For the challenge, faith and not running out of the office when he saw me coming.

Mr. J. Garvey: For helping take care of the 1001 little things that can drive an advisor crazy.

Mr. Dan Gleason, Hunter Publishing: For having the patience of a saint.

Mrs. M. Lomangino: For the endless supply of rubber bands, paper clips, tape, and a 101 other things.

English and Social Studies Departments: For their flexibility with class pictures.

Coaches and Club Advisors: For the stories and the pictures.

The Main Office: For still talking to me after the sale of yearbooks.

Industrial Arts Department: For unlimited use of their telephone.

Mrs. C. Smith: For rosters and schedules.

The Staff: Who still managed to smile after having their pictures taken for a fourth time cause we couldn't find the first three pictures.

Mrs. C. Ronco: Who came running every time she found a HELP! note in her mail box.

Carol Studios: Who understand the phrase "I need these pictures yesterday!"

Lashawn & Sonia: For typing while in my room.

Mrs. Spinthoyrakis: For whom 300 copies were "no problem".

Thanks, K. Kuch

Well, I don't think in any figment of your imaginations did you consider the possibilities of what was in store for you when you joined the yearbook staff. There were times when I think we all would have liked to have dropped everything, smashed the computer against the wall and run. But, we didn't and, well guys, I think we've done a pretty terrific job. Scott and Jessica, although I seemed to have left you both in the dark, your work was a great help and appreciated. Angela, true, we may have missed a few of those rulelines, but your section still looks great. Ann, what could I say to the one editor who mastered the computer and layouts in what seemed like a matter of minutes other than - you did good kid - and thanks for all the extra help and support you've given me. And no, I didn't forget, thank you isn't even enough for that fantastic cover sheet story. Laura, once a musketeer, always a musketeer. Jim, your expertise in photography have ultimately made this yearbook what it is - so a sincere thanks. Joel, thank you, for all those pieces of art work and the time you have put in to help us all out even when we only gave you 1 day to do it. And of course Kirstin, without you all-nighters would never have been possible. Only you can still laugh at my jokes at 4:00 AM in the morning. You can't imagine how much your dedication, enthusiasm and friendship has meant - so don't try.

And lastly, a special thanks to Miss Kuch, our new yearbook advisor. You've been incredible; we couldn't have chosen someone better. When I was told I would be training the "rookie", I never thought you would catch on so quickly - even if you did sometimes insist on trapping that white space. We all appreciate your hours spent on yearbook rather than skiing and hope you do also. Trust me, this was not a bad year compared to most. We've been organized and on time - two definite pluses. And I can't forget to thank Mr. Gleason, our Hunter Publishing Company representative, who has been patient through choosing hues, faces, and sizes.

Thank you everyone for all the work you've done. I always said we'd get it done, and look guys, we really did.

Love, Trish

When I said "yes" to working on the yearbook, I hadn't given much thought to it. I didn't know what I was getting into (ha!). It turned out, of course, to be different from anything I've done before. Somethings were the same though - the confusion, the last minute cramming, the five-thirty bus... Thanks, Tricia and Ms. Kuch for being patient, and teaching me about picas, cropping, "Times Roman", trapped white space (!!), etc., etc. Maybe next year we'll figure out that computer, and I'll learn to focus that camera.

Ann

Yearbook staff members search through some of Jim's photogrphs in an attempt to find "a perfect match" for their spreads. The job is not fun as is exemplified by the perplexed faces.

Well, Tricia, yearbook was everything you promised and more! It caused me a lot of grief (which anyone who knows me at all is by this point well aware of), but I take with me a lot of terrific memories. Thanks to the entire staff for all your patience, help and understanding. The year had its ups and downs, but none seemed to delay us for long and believe it or not we're all done! Laura, I'm sorry I was not always a team player but assuming responsibility is part of my nature. At times it seemed all too rushed, but despite the headaches, the late nights and those endless blurbs the yearbook has strengthened our friendship. A special thank you to Miss Kuch for your endless patience and sense of humor. They taught me a lot more than just about yearbook. Tricia, my teacher, my mentor, my friend - there were a lot of times I know you regretted your decision and countless times you would have liked to have strangled me. Never did you tire from my incessant questions or numerous errors. This yearbook holds a lot more between these two covers than any one could know. So heres to those all-nighters, bad jokes, Fribbles, and the best friend I shall ever be lucky enough to know.

To those members lucky enough to come back next year (Ann, Angela, Jim) - I wish you the best of luck (not for a good yearbook - I've already assumed that - but for your sanity).

Love Kir

Kirstin - I can't believe we finished our section. Sometimes I thought we never would. Even though we got frustrated and fed up, I'm really amazed when I see what everything looks like when it is finished.

Tricia - Thank you so much for helping and teaching me how to do the layouts. I know I could never have gotten the section done otherwise.

Love, Laura

Doing yearbook isn't half as much fun as finishing it. And we certainly did do that somehow! It's not for precrastinators but I'll be back next year to handle deadlines, layouts, stories, and even the computer! It was really great working with you all. And special thanks to Ms. Kuch, to whom I leave a years supply of those ever-disappearing grease pencils.

The year has gone pretty quickly and I am glad our sections are over (or almost over!). I remember when we went to the conference up at Amherst...(all the homework every night) I didn't think we'd ever get to this point but here we are! That trip was a lot of fun because we were all together and got to know each other better. Although some of us from that original group left, we got new members who are just as great. I am glad that I've had a chance to be on Yearbook. It has been fun at times.

Miss Kuch has been a great help to me. Thanks for all your help and reminding of what the yearbook is about.

Mr. Hickserson has been great! And I will miss counting the checks in his room...as Mr. Hickerson would eat his lunch and listen to Ella on his radio. Thanks for all your help Mr. Hickerson. We have both grown in character! (hee, hee).

Tricia and Kir (although Tricia didn't write to me! Boo-hoo!)... I am glad I got to work with you guys. You are both gems and the book wouldn't be anything without you!

To Ann and Angela - good luck next year. You guys will be great though!

I am glad the year has been a good one and appreciate the people I've gotten to work with and know better. I'll miss you guys next year.

As Always - Lizzie

Lizzie - I use my privilege of being editor to say one more thing. You have been terrific this whole year. Thanks for all that fantastic support, enthusiasm, and always being your cheerful self. You're a sweetie and I'll miss your smiles next year.

CASE CLOSED

When the first bell rang on September 3rd, the students started off a new school year to the sound of the hammers and drills of the workmen. The school went through some changes externally as well as internally. Cosmetically the school was improved. New windows were put in as well as a new front school yard. It is true, the school is looking better, but work is still being done all the time.

While one can actually view these improvements, we have also seen a lot of growth internally within the student body. Every student is experiencing internal changes leading to maturity and a greater sense of independence. Whether a learning experience involves trying to understand relationships and our friends or simply disciplining ourselves to finally complete an English term paper, ultimately all our high school endeavors have helped us to prepare for future responsibilites.

In retrospect I look back and see that Harborfields has been a place to grow academically and as a person. We have all made what are possibly life long friendships here. I have, as I am sure most of my classmates have, created important memories of this place. Both good and bad, these memories will be with us for the rest of our lives. For the seniors this is a time of feeling achievement and a time to look ahead. As seniors we go through each day and each high school event with the realizsation that it is our last time to do it as a class together. That in itself has created an atmosphere of togetherness among us that I have never seen before quite this way.
